

U. S. GOES DRY MONDAY AS WILSON CAN'T LIFT BAN

COUNCIL CALLED "BUNCH OF DUBS" BY THE MAYOR

Simpson Says Recent Actions of Members Leads to Belief of Weakness.

Metheany Declines to Discuss Controversy Over Sewer Bids—Councilmen Give Views.

Characterizing the city council, as a whole, as a "bunch of dubs," Mayor Baile Simpson waxed warm and voluble Saturday over the accusation of certain councilmen that the board of control was trying to "pass the buck" on the sewer bids.

"I do not know what the city council thinks," he said, "and furthermore, I do not care a d—n. They can make up whatever beliefs they care to, but I will not change my policy."

"It is my duty and wish to serve, to the best of my interest, the city of Lima," he continued, "and certain recent actions of members of the council makes one believe that they are a weak, vacillating type of character. When a member of the council permits himself to be moulded by the president of a public utility company he is not acting to the best interests of the city, in my estimation. I give Schoepf credit for his manner of operation, but I cannot think the council members at all clever to play into his hand, when they went to his home last week."

"As for the bids on the Collett Street Sewer matter, I simply know that they wanted to see the bids, and the meeting Thursday night was for that purpose. As for anything further Mr. Metheany can advise you."

Service Director Metheany absolutely refused to discuss the controversy, stating that he had nothing to say.

"I simply adhered to the wishes of the council," he said, "and read the report of the bids to them. Further than that I have nothing to say."

"I do not understand Metheany's closed-door policy," said Carl H. Griebeling. "I have been in the council three years and I have yet to have my first interview with him. He is either not in, or very busy and cannot see anyone, so I never get a chance to see him."

C. E. Stiles, councilman from the second ward, while not present at the meeting Thursday night, stated that it was a "rely up to the board of control to award the contract, and that the council had no business in the matter except to pass the legislation."

"It seems to me," said C. P. Morey, "that perhaps the purpose of Metheany in trying to get the council mixed up in the awarding of the contract was to get even with them for blocking him on the question of employing the engineer for the construction."

"Why certainly," said F. C. Snyder, "that's just what Metheany wanted,—to get the council to say something and then make it share the blame if something went wrong with the work. But you didn't see the council going on record, did you? We want to see this work started, and Fuller is being paid for his advice, so it is up to him, and the board of control."

TURN MEET INTO PEACE JUBILEE

Signing of Peace Treaty Celebrated at Methodist Exposition.

COLUMBUS.—The signing "on the dotted line" of the peace treaty, by Germany Saturday, put the "big kick" in the labor day program at the Methodist centenary exposition.

As soon as the news reached the exposition grounds that the treaty had been signed, centenary officials immediately staged an impromptu demonstration.

Trumpeters on horses raced thru the exposition grounds, shouting "the glad tidings" and calling the visitors together at the band stand near the Coliseum. Bands played, bells rang and the arena screamed.

Bishop Homer C. Stuntz opened the peace celebration by leading the crowd in singing "Faith of Our Fathers."

Other speakers made peace celebration talks before the visitors returned to the labor day program.

Five Killed When Train Hits Auto

DERRY, Pa.—Five persons were killed when a passenger train crashed into an automobile at Ridge View Park crossing near here early Saturday night.

The dead are all of Knoxville, a suburb of Pittsburgh.

WILSON ON WAY HOME TO START LEAGUE BATTLE

Will Probably Deliver Treaty Message to Senate Week From Tomorrow.

Plans to Commence His Covenant Speaking Tour a Few Days Later.

WASHINGTON.—His peace job ended with the signing of the treaty Saturday, President Wilson is homeward bound, faced with one of the biggest political battles of his career and a mass of business which rests on his desk at the White House.

Enroute home, he will prepare his message to the senate urging ratification of the peace treaty and the league of nations covenant. He will deliver this message the day after his arrival here, probably a week from Monday or Tuesday.

A few days later he plans to start his tour of the country to explain the treaty to the people. It is absolutely vital, the president says, "that the people understand the treaty and the league."

MAY DETERMINE COURSE

Simultaneously with his campaign for ratification of the treaty and covenant, those opposed to the terms of both will carry on a vigorous fight for amendment of the pact or separation of the treaty proper and the league covenant. Upon the decision of the senate toward the document, he brings home, the president's friends say will depend on whether or not he runs again for president. He doesn't want to make the race again, they say, but he believes that the peace treaty and the league of nations must be forced thru at all costs. To this end, he will turn his attention primarily immediately upon his return.

BUREAU TO DISSOLVE

But there is a mass of other matters before the president. Bureaus created by him thru proclamation during the war, such as the Creel bureau, the war labor board and numerous others must now be formally dissolved and the reports of their executive heads approved by the president. This will be followed by resignations of many of the "war chiefs" such as Herbert Hoover, chairman of the food administration, Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the war trade board, Bernard Baruch, chairman of the war industries board; George Creel, chairman of the committee on public information; Dr. Garfield, chairman of the fuel administration and numerous other lesser lights. Most of the resignations are before the president, awaiting final acceptance by him until their reports are in.

RETURN TO CIVIL LIFE

Most of the appropriations of the so-called "war bureaus" expire July 1, and they will automatically go out of existence with failure of congress to pass continuing resolution.

With the proclamation of peace by the president about 150,000 naval reserves and naval men who are enlisted for the duration of the war will be eligible for return to civil life. Their enlistment provides that when the emergency is over, they shall be put on inactive duty until their four years' enlistment expires.

In preparation for the loss of these men, the navy is pushing its recruiting campaign for men so that the naval work may not be hampered.

SINN FEIN QUARTERS SEIZED BY THE POLICE

DUBLIN.—A body of police and military officials seized the Sinn Fein headquarters here Saturday, searching the propaganda department.

A quantity of documents relating to the peace conference and the mission of the Irish-American delegates was confiscated. No one was arrested. Arthur Griffiths, acting president of the Sinn Fein and Father O'Flanagan, vice president, looked on while the raid was being conducted.

GIRLS CAPTURED AFTER ALLEGED THEFT AT STORE

Clerks at Deisel's Give Chase Thru Alley and Busy Streets.

Following a chase down the alley between Main and Elizabeth streets, and up High street, clerks of the Deisel store succeeded in capturing three colored girls alleged to have been caught at shoplifting last night in the Deisel store.

They were held in the office of the store until police arrived and took them to the police station where an alleged confession was obtained.

The girls were Creta Barker, 18, rear 545 west Elm street; Ella Hope, 20, 325 west Elm street and Mary Patterson, 16, 1311 west Spring street.

The girls, it is charged, were caught in the act of taking merchandise from the store. They immediately attempted to escape by rushing thru the crowds on the streets. Their attempt was frustrated by clerks of the store who gave chase and succeeded in reaching them.

More than $125 worth of goods, it is alleged by the police, were lifted by the girls. They are said by police to have confessed to the thefts. Six silk shirts, a silk skirt and a silk night gown it is alleged, were in possession of one of the girls. Underwear, hose and other articles were taken, it is said.

Police also searched the homes of the girls where, they say, they found a great deal of merchandise.

The girls will be arraigned in police court Monday morning, with the exception of Mary Patterson, who is a juvenile. She will be turned over to juvenile authorities.

CROWD APPLAUSE LEAGUE ATTACK

Speeches of Reed and Johnson Cheered by New York Audience.

NEW YORK.—Four thousand people, many of whom were Irish republic sympathizers, packed Carnegie hall Saturday night and cheered Senators James Reed of Missouri, and Hiram Johnson of California, in their denunciation of the league of nations, and hissed reference to the British empire.

Intensely emotional, the audience arose almost to a man to cheer Senator Johnson when he characterized the league as an "iniquitous covenant."

Immediately preceding his speech, Senator Johnson was given a rousing ovation after an enthusiastic but puerile hail from the crowd.

Senator Reed recapitulated all the arguments he used against the covenant on the floor of the senate.

CONFERENCE CLOSES

CLEVELAND, ND.—The national conference for the advancement of colored people closed its sessions Saturday night with a mass meeting at Gray's armory.

"Anti-lynching" was the subject of discussion at the final meeting.

GUNS BOOM AS GOLD PENS END WARFARE

Great Demonstration Follows Signing of Peace Treaty In the Same Hall Where William I Was Crowned Emperor of Germany

VERSAILLES.—Germany and the allied and associated powers signed the treaty of peace Saturday, bringing to a formal end the mightiest war of all time.

Signatures were affixed to the great document in the Hall of Mirrors, within a few yards of the spot in the same hall where William I had himself crowned emperor of Germany, and where the German empire was proclaimed.

The hall was crowded when the German delegates, Foreign Minister Mueller and Colonial Minister Bell entered and took their seats at 3:00 o'clock. Mueller was first to sign, at 3:12. Bell was next. President Wilson signed at 3:14, then Premier Lloyd George, two minutes later. Entire delegates then signed this order:

United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, and the smaller powers. Chinese delegates absent themselves, refusing to participate on account of the Shantung settlement and it was reported they had cabled Peking for instructions.

In refusing to sign the peace treaty, the Chinese delegation issued a statement in which they said: "The peace conference having denied China justice in the settlement of the Shantung question and in effect preventing the Chinese delegates Saturday from signing the treaty without sacrificing their sense of right and justice and patriotic duty, the Chinese submit their case to the impartial judgment of the world."

DECIDE NOT TO SIGN

The concluding paragraph contained a long statement detailing the continual effort to obtain the agreement for the Chinese signature without reservation. The latest action was taken on Thursday when it was proposed that the Chinese sign the treaty and then submit a declaration of their attitude. The Chinese refused on the ground that the stability of the declaration would then be doubtful.

At noon Saturday the Chinese sent word to the conference of their intention not to sign.

General Smuts, signing for South Africa, did so under protest and issued a statement setting forth his reasons.

In signing the delegates stepped upon a dais upon which the horseshoe table was elevated. In the middle of the U formed by the horseshoe, was a smaller table, upon which the treaty lay.

Snow white quill and amber-handled gold pens were used. Clemenceau's pen was presented by the people of Alsace-Lorraine. A brown tapestry carpet, very old and valuable, covered the floor, and the table was covered with brown tapestry.

Forty minutes after the ceremony began Clemenceau announced:

"The conditions of peace are now an accomplished fact; the proceedings are closed."

GUNS BOOM, CROWD CHEERS

It was over. The Germans left in dead silence, at 3:52. As the allied representatives stepped out upon the terrace, there was a booming of guns and the famous fountains of Versailles sent sparkling streams high into the air, while a tremendous crowd burst into wild cheering. Surging crowds pushed against the police lines and swarmed around the commissioners, bombarding them with flowers. President Wilson and the others were pushed the full length of the terrace in the midst of joyous throng. Then the soldiers opened a path thru the crowd to the waiting automobiles and as the noise of the demonstration spread, the cars moved slowly away.

The Germans returned quietly to the Hotel Des Reservoirs, Mueller, tall and striking, of diplomatic appearance, Bell, black-mustached and bespectacled—an excitable politician of radical type. At 8:20 they left Versailles with the utmost secrecy.

HOPE FOR CHANGE

Mueller and Bell made the following exclusive statement to the United Press:

"We are signing without mental reservations. What we are signing will be carried out. The German people will use every means to meet the terms."

"We believe the entente will, in its own interests, find it necessary to change some of the terms, or they will see the treaty impossible of execution."

"We believe the entente will not insist on delivery of the kaiser and other high officers."

"The central government will not assist in any attack on Poland."

"Germany will make every effort to prove herself worthy to enter the league of nations."

Immediately before the session members of the big four were swamped with requests for their autographs, Wilson and others smilingly wrote vigorously for several minutes on every scrap of paper handed them.

ENTRANCE OF GERMANS

Absolute quiet came at 3 o'clock,

BOOZE FAREWELL HAS GOLTHAMITES READY FOR BOUT

"Ringside" Seats at Cabarets in Demand—Auctions of Liquor Planned.

NEW YORK.—Ringside seats for the last battle of the long-invincible champion are nearly all gone, and the big bout is almost here. There isn't a prouder man on earth who knows what's going to happen next Monday night. Almost everyone has a vague and general idea that the affair is going to be about two shades redder than any two of the celebrated last days of Pompeii, though, and it acting accordingly.

Booze never has been shown the door in any nation before, and there are very few who haven't been stung by the idle curiosity bug, and they are waiting to see in just what manner the official ceremony will be accomplished.

RESERVATION RUSH

The general hunch seems to be that the best place to watch developments will be in the hotels and cabarets. There has been a big rush for reservations, and as a consequence about the only places left are books in the check rooms. The customary New Year's Eve rush for reservations seem petty compared with the deluge of requests for the coming party.

Few of the hotels are planning any programs of any sort except the usual cabaret performances, and they probably won't last long.

One has announced that, as part of the last night celebration, it will hold an auction of the left-over bottled goods. There may be nothing left, however, by the last of the month. The law specifies that all places which sell liquor must have all of it entirely off their premises by July 1. Other hotels and cabarets may follow this plan.

Most of the hotels, however, have no plans for the disposition of the liquor in case it does not all go down throats by midnight of next Monday night.

BETTER SERVICE PROMISED BY O. E.

Company Plans New Transfer Points to Eliminate Central Congestion.

Plans which are expected to mature in the near future will offer better street car service to Lima it was unofficially announced Saturday.

New transfer points to be established will eliminate delays in the transportation problem now facing the public. Positive junction points to be in effect with the new order are promised to do away with the necessary delay in the transfer of passengers at the public square.

Heretofore the change of cars has been made at the square. Present plans will make possible a detour at Main and Kibby and Wayne streets.

Officials of the Ohio Electric company have taken the matter up with officers at Springfield and a decision is expected to be forthcoming soon.

LID CLAMPED TILL ARMY IS DEMOBILIZED

President Hasn't Legal Power to Stay Prohibition, He Cables Tumult.

Will Exercise Authority When Troops Return, His Message Says.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson in a message Saturday, to Secretary Tumulty declared that until mobilization is completed, his power to act in lifting the ban on intoxicants cannot be exercised, since congress failed to pass the necessary legislation.

The president disclosed in his message that Attorney General Palmer had advised him he did not have the legal power to lift the ban on liquor, with which ruling the president agreed.

The law, the president said, provides the ban shall be lifted, not with the signing of peace, but with the termination of the demobilization of troops. His advice from the war department, he added, are that there are still 1,000,000 men in service under the emergency call and since congress failed to repeal the law insofar as it applies to wines and beers, the president finds it "impossible to act" at this time or until after demobilization is completed.

The president says that when demobilization is completed, his power to act "will be exercised."

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

"I am convinced that the attorney general is right in advising me that I have no legal power at this time in the matter of the ban on liquor. Under the act of November, 1918, my power to take action is restricted."

"The act provides that 'after June 30, 1919, until the conclusion of the present war or thereafter until the termination of demobilization, the date of which shall be determined and proclaimed by the president, it shall be unlawful' etc."

"This law does not specify that the ban shall be lifted with the signing of peace, but with the termination of demobilization of the troops, and I cannot say that that has been accomplished."

"My information from the war department is that there are still 1,000,000 men in service under the emergency call. It is clear, therefore, that the failure of congress to act upon the suggestion contained in my message of the 20th of May, 1919, asking for a repeal of the act of November 21, 1918, so far as it applies to wines and beers makes it impossible to act in this matter at this time."

"When demobilization is terminated my power to act without congressional action will be exercised."

(Signed)

"WOODROW WILSON."

MAY LIFT BAN SOON

The president's decision was interpreted here to mean that while the country must become "dry" in accordance with the war-time prohibition act after next Monday, the ban against liquor may be lifted when demobilization is an accomplished fact.

There were Saturday 1,041,487 officers, men, nurses and army field clerks in the army. Since the armistice was signed 2,685,182 officers and men have been discharged. The army was 72 percent demobilized Saturday. A week ago it was 69 percent demobilized—3 percent a week.

There is no official estimation of the time when demobilization will be completed, indications are that the army will be reduced to its peace strength several months before the constitutional prohibition amendment goes into effect next January. It is considered probable by officials here that two or three months may see the lifting of the war-time food conservation ban on intoxicants.

FREEDOM VICTORY TO BE CELEBRATED TODAY

CLEVELAND.—Slavonic societies of Cleveland and northern Ohio will unite Sunday in celebrating attainment of national freedom and deliverance from the yoke of Turk and Austrian rule.

Sunday is Kossovo Day. For more than 500 years Serbians have made it a national holiday. It commemorates the battle of that name which the Serbians lost to the Turks on June 29, 1339.

The program Sunday calls for a parade and memorial services.

18,000 Miles of Service on Cleveland Pavements

In Cleveland, as in every other busy industrial center, Goodrich De Luxe Truck Tires are living up to their national reputation of trebling and quadrupling mileage adjustment figures.

For example, the De Luxe Tires on the huge 5-ton truck of The Fisher Bros. Company, 2223 Lakeside Avenue, wholesale grocers, have amassed to date the sterling average of 18,000 miles per tire under enormous loads.

The strain on the rear tires has been tremendous—owing to the great rear overhang of the body. Still the tires hold to their task unfailingly.

Everywhere you go in Cleveland you'll hear praiseworthy accounts of De Luxe Tires—put them on your trucks, for economy and general efficiency.

PROGRAM MAPPED OUT FOR COUNTY NURSE CAMPAIGN

Cooperation of Schools and Other Factors Will Give Impetus to Work

Miss Nibel Will Start Duties
Tuesday—Comes Here From Philadelphia

As the culmination of several committee meetings at the Y. M. C. A., extending over a period of a week or more, a definite program of procedure has been fixed to govern the work in Allen County of the Rural Nurse, one of the most important innovations of the State Department of Health.

The final meeting of the series which was presided over by Dr. Josephine Pierce, president of the Allen County Child Welfare Association brought together the officials of the organization, County Superintendent of Schools C. A. Arganbright and his district superintendents, and representatives of the organization from every township and village in the county.

At this meeting a systematic plan of co-ordination of effort was launched, and the organization with which to carry it thru perfected. As constituted this important body which will at all times co-operate with the new rural nurse Miss Nibel who is to begin her duties on July 1st, is as follows:

C. A. Arganbright, superintendent of schools, chairman.

Messrs. Prof. C. C. Nardin, superintendent of the Bluffton schools and having charge of Richland township, (No. 1).

J. W. McCleary, with jurisdiction over three townships, (No. 2).

L. W. Byerly, representing four townships, (No. 3).

E. E. Leidy, superintendent at Elida and representing four townships, (No. 4).

When the official appointment of Spencerville's new official is confirmed, that will add district No. 5, and this will complete the county organization. These men will be known as vice chairmen.

The committee which will co-operate with the above, working very closely with the parent organization in Lima is made up as follows:

Mrs. A. L. Baumgardner, Bluffton.

Mrs. H. M. Vell, Delphos.

Mrs. Charles Pohlman, Spencerville and Spencer township.

Mrs. Dr. Ruebeck, Gomer and Sugar Creek township.

Mrs. L. O. Durkee, Beavertown.

Mrs. C. E. Palmer, Lafayette and Jackson township.

Mrs. B. E. Leidy, Elida.

Mrs. M. L. Johnson, Harrod.

Mrs. T. J. Roberts, Westminster and Auglaize township.

Mrs. E. A. Miller, West Cairo.

Mrs. C. F. Buettner, Marion township.

Mrs. Charles Post, Amanda township.

Mrs. Scott Neely and Mrs. Long, American township.

Mrs. W. B. Derryman, Shawnee township.

Mrs. Clay Harpater, Monroe township.

Miss Flora Gottschalk, Richland township.

Miss Otis Lippincott, Bath township.

Mrs. F. K. Siderer, Perry township.

THE NEW RURAL NURSE

The work of the organization's new employee Miss Nibel, who comes from a long and valuable training at a Philadelphia hospital, will then begin formally on the first of July. Readers of the News will recall the report made by Miss Annie Cunningham, special appointee of the State Board of Health and the State Tuberculosis Board who is Ohio's first rural nurse, and who made Allen county the second of her professional career. This report made some three weeks ago showed conditions in the country schools—enumerating cases examined coming under the various defects of childhood which are remedial and preventive.

Miss Nibel will take up this report and continue the work where Miss Cunningham left off, and this intermediary work and that to come later when the State nurse again visits this field will constitute an unbroken line of defense against the ills that beset the growing school youth. Ashland County enjoys the distinction of being the first to receive the benefits of the state's rural nurse; Allen County is the second. The eyes of many states and many children's organizations throughout the United States are on the doings of the Allen County Child Welfare Association. It is said by experts that no other community in the country has so perfect an organization for real benefits to childhood as the local one.

WILL PLAY BASEBALL

Baseball is the first of the big things in the play line contemplated for the benefit of the boys this summer at the five city play centers. Supervisor Isenbarger is even now making a list of the paraphernalia required, he has notes of those boys displaying special abilities in the line of batting, pitching, catching and running and within a few days will be able to announce his first lineup. He will then organize four or five clubs, probably one from of the five centers, into a league and there will be contest games for prizes.

Fairport park had the largest attendance at the opening of last Monday; the youths from the Horace Mann grounds adjoining to the park for the after part of the program. Old Glory will soon float from twenty-five foot flag poles at both parks in the playground sections—and the children will follow a definite program of saluting at each session, with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner. Miss Moore is organizing her classes in hand work among the girls at all five centers. The girls will also play indoor baseball, a very exciting sport; and there will be volleyball also, and a variety of other games.

For the present the hours at each of the five play centers, Fairport and Lincoln parks, and Horace Mann, Garfield and Whittier schools are from 9 to 11 and from 3 to 6:30 p. m.

MERCURY DROPS, LIMA SHIVERS

Coal Wave Hits City and Low Mark of 59 Degrees Is Reached.

With the temperature at 59 degrees at 10 o'clock last night, Lima lies in Palm Beach suits and thin summer weight dresses were driven home by the wintry blasts, wondering if summer was over, or had not yet commenced.

Ice cream shops were well lighted as the mercury lowered, and people found but little pleasure in motoring.

Weather reports showed the highest temperature at 2 p. m. Saturday when the 73-degree mark was reached. From then on the temperature lowered gradually until it hovered around 55 degrees at midnight.

The unusual cold snap, accompanied by a chilly wind from the north, presaged cool days to come. The changeableness of the weather is said to be accountable for the prevalence of colds, which have been particularly noticeable during the past few days.

LODGE NOTICES

Mart Armstrong Post will meet in regular session Tuesday evening, July 1st at 7:30 o'clock at the Memorial hall.

Allen Camp No. 84 W. O. W. will confer the Protection degree on a class of candidates Monday evening. There will be a team and officers' practice for unveiling ceremony. All members are urged to be present.

Pythians Attention: Annual Memorial services at Woodlawn cemetery at 3 p. m. Sunday, June 29, 1919. Should weather be inclement services will be in the chapel. This will be a most impressive service. Let us bow in memoriam. Come.

THINKS AMERICA NOT ENDANGERED BY BOLSHIEVISM

Radical Socialist Leader Says
Workers of U. S. Are Conservative

NEW YORK — The "dictatorship of the proletariat" is an impossibility in America today. There will be no violent revolution attempting to overthrow the "capitalist system" in the immediate future.

This is the statement of James O'neal, member of the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party of America, editorial writer for the Socialist daily newspaper, the New York Call.

He has just returned from Europe, where he was sent as the representative of the American Socialist Party to the Bern conference, and has been making an intensive study of the revolutionary conditions in Europe.

He discussed the drift of the "Left Wing" in the Socialist Party—the Bolshevik branch of the party which seeks to imitate the European radicals in trying to bring about an immediate, violent revolution in America.

"Is there any possibility of American Socialists attempting to institute proletarian dictatorship in this country? If so, what chance have they of success?" were the questions asked him.

Here is his answer: "The fact that the whole continent of Europe is going thru revolutionary times is no evidence that New York, California, Alabama and all other American states are affected.

"All the factors that have accompanied the social revolutions in Europe are absent here and this fact cannot be stressed too often.

"The United States is the most conservative power in the world today. Our working class is the most conservative of any working class.

Varied Career Has Had Lima's Public Square

In the transition of events during Lima's physical growth, probably no one spot has been the scene of more action and interest than the Square. Within its confines have been enacted some of the history making episodes that have characterized the early life of the struggling community.

From Indian fights and political brawls to peaceful days of romance and busy contentment, the Square has been witness to all the capriciousness of Time's fitful vagaries.

Within the ken of the oldest living pioneers the Square is recalled as "Allen County's Barnyard."

It was the wont of the farmer to drive his family or load of hay or wood to Lima and hitch on the Square. Feed bags were tied behind the wagon, and the horses unharnessed. Produce was bartered by the load or small lot, families met on the Square to discuss the latest news coming by horse-post from the outer world, and all Lima converged at this point in a common purpose of education and progress.

Today the Square portrays a scene of vastly different interest.

Saturday night two hundred automobiles were parked within its borders. On the sidewalks were thousands of people, shoppers, sight-seers and promenaders.

Illuminated by countless thousands of electric lights in signs and shop windows one could but fancy the same location as it was on a Saturday night 71 years ago. A jollification meeting was conducted over some political triumph, and a symphony of fire-balls were used to illuminate the Square and attract the crowd.

TRADEMARKS ARE STOLEN BY MANY, SAYS COMPLAINT

Latin-Americans Held as Worst
Offenders—War Checked
Practice

WASHINGTON.—Not long ago, an American piano concern, receiving many inquiries concerning pianos and piano-players from a certain Latin-American country, decided to open an agency there.

On the day that the agency was to open, a small, suave man called upon the head salesman, and informed him in a bewildering mixture of Spanish and English that no pianos bearing that particular name could be sold in his country.

"Why not," demanded the salesman.

"Because," said the visitor, "your trademark is already registered here."

The salesman thought quickly. His firm had already spent thousands of dollars in shipping pianos and establishing the agency.

"How much do you want?" he inquired.

The visitor asserted indignantly that he did not want anything. How could the salesman so misjudge him. Nevertheless, he finally allowed himself to be insulted to the extent of $2000, and the American concern gained possession of its trademark.

TRAFFIC IS RESUMED.

This is only one of many incidents recently occurring which show that the traffic in American trademarks through Latin-America is being resumed with renewed vigor, after its temporary interruption during the war.

The government therefore urges every American manufacturer to register his trademark in every Latin-American country in which he contemplates doing business either in the immediate or remote future.

LAW MAKES THEFT EASY.

The constant traffic in American trademarks in Latin-America is made possible by the law, which provides that a trademark belongs to the first person who registers it regardless of whether he uses it or not. Thus a Latin-American buys the trademark in the hope that it's value will go up.

For years it may be worthless, but eventually the American concern is almost certain to want to sell its product in that country, especially when cleverly baited by a large number of false inquiries. Then the trademark is worth a good deal of money.

During the war many enemy aliens took advantage of the law to get hold of American trademarks, and many of the registrations recently protested by the government were those of German firms.

GENERAL LAYTON REVIEWS LOCAL TRUCK COMPANY

Approves Enlistment of Transport Unit—Lima Concerns Will Co-operate.

Adjutant General Roy Layton, head of the Ohio National Guard, reviewed and approved of the enlistment of some forty men at a meeting of the members of the proposed motor transport company, held last night in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

It is the plan of the promoters of the company to make the organization equal if not better than the one being organized in Cleveland. These two will be the only units in the state.

They plan to co-ordinate the military drill that the men will receive with special instruction in the technique of the military truck. With the Gramm Bernstein and Garford motor truck plants in the city, boosting the project and offering to send men from their plants to instruct them in the work, the promoters feel sure of success.

Weekly classes of an hour in length, following the regular military drill of the men are planned. Specialists on each different part of the motor will handle their own work at these classes. It is the plan of the plants, to give a man a thorough understanding of a motor truck within a period of three months through these weekly lessons.

Every regularly enlisted man is entitled to partake of this opportunity, it is said. An effort is being made to interest all eligible men in the city in the proposition.

By virtue of Lima being a truck manufacturing center, the city is being watched carefully in connection with this project, by state militia officials.

The pre-war status of the militia does not affect its new standing, according to boosters of the project. Under the new regulations, it is said, a man may receive an honorable discharge from his detachment with a necessary change in residence.

Enlistment stations for men who are interested in the proposed motor transport company are established at practically every one of the manufacturing establishments in the city. Commissioned officers for the detachments have been recommended to state officials and will probably be announced shortly.

Cat Refuses To Leave Old Home

One faithful habitue of the former rathskeller, Main and High streets, refuses to leave the old surroundings. A large tiger cat which made its home there during the reign of King Barleycorn is loath to depart.

Wide-eyed and wistful he sits near the entrance to the restaurant leading to the basement.

Faithfulness seems to be his outstanding characteristic. Passersby wonder if he is waiting for the return of the white lights.

'SELF HELP' IS THE BIG IDEA

It's Back of "Neighborhood House" Plan Being Tried Out

BY HENRY BECKETT

NEW YORK.—"How would you like to be the ice man?" small boys used to cry as the wagon rumbled by. It was just a stock phrase of boyhood.

Now the small boy who lives in a tenement, up dark, narrow stairs, and whose yard is a narrow street, actually has a chance to play the ice man, and "swipe" all the slivers of ice he wants, without having to skip hastily off the wagon step and run barefooted to escape the iceman himself.

"Neighborhood houses" will supply New York's poor with ice, but they want two boys to volunteer as helpers on each wagon.

This is one of a thousand activities that 48 neighborhood houses conduct, now that they are united in a great Americanizing effort.

TRADE UNIONS AID

Trades unions, employers and employees help finance the largest printing trade school in the world, which the Hudson Guild carries on for hundreds of young chaps. English is taught to parents and children of all nationalities, and American ideals.

The neighborhood house combats Bolshevism by proving to the foreigner that the real American idea is one of co-operation, according to George J. Hecht, editor of Better Times, the world's smallest newspaper, published by United Neighborhood Houses. It's about four inches by three.

He says:

"A movement is spreading thruout the United States for the erection of community houses, to be known as 'Liberty Buildings,' as soldiers' and sailors' memorials.

"One such building has been given by a New Yorker as a thanksgiving offering for the safe return from France of his soldier son. Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane has written a letter to mayors of towns thruout the country endorsing this movement."

SENATE PASSES SOLDIERS' BONUS IN WISCONSIN

New Bill for $15,000,000 Has
Income Tax and Bond
Features

MADISON, Wis. — Under suspension of the rules, the Wisconsin senate unanimously passed a new bill granting bonuses to soldiers.

The amount to be raised will be $15,000,000, of which about $5,000,000 will be raised by surtax incomes and the balance will be raised by a direct state tax, each county being given the option of raising its proportionate share either by a bond issue or by a tax.

Soldiers, sailors, marines and Red Cross nurses will be paid a bonus at the rate of $10 a month, with a minimum of $50. In case of death the heirs shall receive $10 for the time the soldier was in service, with July 1, 1919, computed as the date of termination of such service. A provision to make the law inoperative in case the federal government passes a law on the subject was stricken out.

WHERE INCOME TAXES BEGIN
Net incomes of individuals in excess of $12,000 and net corporation incomes in excess of $7,000 shall pay a surtax of 6 per cent. The income tax feature was inserted on the suggestion of Senator H. J. Severson of Waupaca county.

The Wisconsin assembly today turned down the 2.5 per cent beer column. This bill was killed yesterday by a vote of 46 to 45. After several hours of debate today the vote was reconsidered, and the bill was sent to third reading, 46 to 42. Final action on the bill will be taken Saturday morning and the indications are that the measure will pass.

NEW FINANCIAL COMPANY ORGANIZED HERE TO AID PERSONS WHO ARE IN DEBT

A decidedly new and novel idea in Lima financial life is to be inaugurated this week with the opening of office in the Business College Block of a company that intends to pay the bill of working men and families that are deeply in debt to stores in the city.

Headed by local men this company will operate, in a measure, similarly to the Morris Plan institution, which loans money without security and accepts small payments in return.

The plan of operation of the new company, will be to pay the bills of people in various mercantile establishments in the city and permit the debtor to pay in small amounts according to his earning ability, at a central place.

C. J. Welch, of Toledo, is in the city, getting the plan in operation and organizing the work.

ADJUSTMENT THAT SQUARES with GOODRICH PERFORMANCE

In practical usage on road and pavement, Goodrich Tires are to-day consistently delivering remarkable mileage, showing a strength and endurance that proves them the best tires the rubber industry has developed.

Knowing by actual performance what splendid service Goodrich Tires are giving, the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company has taken a step frankly intended to induce every motorist to share in the matchless mileage of its tires.

It has established this new adjustment mileage worthy of the proven durability of Goodrich Tires:

6,000 miles for Safety Treads—8,000 miles for Silvertown Cords, instead of the old adjustment of 3,500 for Safety Treads, and 5,000 for Silvertowns. The new adjustment holds good for all Goodrich Tires, including tires already purchased in the hands of user or dealer.

Go to a Goodrich dealer and buy Goodrich Tires, sure that they will pay in full their mileage.

JUDGE AGAINST DEATH PENALTY; PROSECUTOR FAVORS PRESENT LAW

Cable Says Repeal of Provisions
Would Tend to Increase
Crime in State

Judge Klinger Believes it Should Be Eliminated and Pardon
Barred

The pending request of Warden P. E. Thomas, of the Ohio state penitentiary, in which he seeks the abolition of the death sentence has met with disfavor on the part of the Allen county prosecuting attorney.

Under the plan of Thomas the enforcement of capital punishment would be left entirely to the governor of the state. The murderer under sentence would receive the death penalty only at the discretion of the state executive. The plan proposed and to be presented to the legislature while, not doing away with the supreme penalty, advocates the use of the electric chair only for extreme cases.

"In the instance of a person on trial for murder, the jury is the best qualified body to determine whether a death penalty or life imprisonment should be exacted," stated Prosecutor John Cable. "The removing of the death penalty would serve to increase murder in a great measure owing to the fact that a premeditated killing may be more attractive to one if the price to pay was only life sentence upon conviction." If a crime is committed of such a nature that society demands the full satisfaction the fullest penalty must be exacted," he declared.

Opposite views are maintained by Judge William Klinger of the Allen county common pleas court. Draconic measures and the enforcement of convictions should be taken in all actions against criminals he holds but the death sentence was not strongly favored by the judge. Klinger has served on the bench for a number of years and has a fund of information regarding the circumstances and causes surrounding the commitment of crimes. He served as prosecutor of Allen county several years ago.

"Life sentence is more punishing than any other, if the letter of the law is carried out," he maintains. "Crimes are committed because of the fact that the criminal believes that it is the easiest manner in which to gain a livelihood. In the punishment of criminals they must be made to fear the law." During the time I have occupied the bench of the common pleas court, there has come to trial nine murderers, all of which received life sentence. Now there is only one in the penitentiary today. The other eight have been pardoned or paroled. Life sentence in the cases did not mean much to those who received them.

"The cases on record that show that persons sentenced to imprisonment for life prove that the average inmate is discharged from the penal institution after only ten years of confinement. Recently this has been reduced to a term of five years as the full payment exacted for murder."

"The solution lies not in the death sentence, but in the rigid enforcement of the convictions upon the transgressors of the laws of society. The fact that a loophole is afforded by the system of pardons and reprieves now in effect serves to heighten the crime wave, especially that of murder."

"Criminals disobey the law, because they think it is easy to evade and on conviction, it has been proved that only a short sentence is exacted in most cases. Sentence visited upon a person does not necessarily argue that he will serve the full time given him."

Speaking of the lack of enforcement of convictions, the judge cited the instance of the small child which is laid to steal and commit minor offenses, because it knows that it will not be punished. If made to pay a price it does no actual good because the penalty is not heavy enough.

"If all criminals were punished according to the law the prevalence of crime would be greatly diminished," Judge Klinger declared.

"The theory of dealing lightly with murders is advocated only when the crime is the result of a diseased mind," he stated.

TRIBE OF BEN HUR BUYS THE WALLACE HOMESTEAD

Information received here by Omer Freeman, deputy of the local tribe of Ben Hur, says that the old home of General Lew Wallace, Crawfordsville, Ind., has been preserved by the lodge at that place from falling into the hands of real estate speculators.

An offer of $20,000 was accepted by the owners as the purchase price of the old homestead, when it was learned that it was about to be cut up into building lots.

It is thought that the proposed memorial to be dedicated to the late D. W. Gerard, founder of the order of Ben Hur, will be erected on the grounds.

The homestead ranks second to the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln in the importance as a state historical spot.

A vast south side improvement is under way with the purchase by Elmer D. Webb and G. O. Dupius of the old Lima Drilling Company's addition, near the plant of the National Roofing Tile company in the south-east portion of the city.

The tract includes 250 lots, and is bounded on the north by Kirby street, on the west by Sugar street, east by Mandeville, and south by the C. and E. railroad.

The east and west streets included are Kirby, on the north, Albert, Franklin, Dingleline and Michael. The D. T. and I. railroad tracks cut the property north and south from Kirby to Dingleline, while the property south of Dingleline is west of the railroad.

The property was purchased from Percy King, Chris McCune and H. G. Gilpin.

Apartment houses, restricted residence sections, new buildings for the down-town section, and country home sites, are included in new real estate plans for the immediate future.

The most attractive home section in Lima is being planned by the West End Realty Company, whose 40 lots west of Woodlawn on Market street, will be converted into a boulevard park.

Structural work on the new Citizens Loan and Savings company building on Main street is about to be commenced, the south half of the Bell block having been razed, and excavation completed.

INTRODUCTION TO M'COY, WHO MADE THE INCOME LAW

Government Actuary Who Figured it Out is Expert in His Line

WASHINGTON. — "Income Tax Payer, meet Mr. Joseph S. McCoy; Mr. McCoy, meet your victim."

It might not have been in good taste to make such an introduction a few months back, when millions of men and women throughout the country were struggling with their income tax returns.

But now that the worst is over, it is in order to present the power behind the throne of taxation.

This power is just plain Joe McCoy, middle-aged and pleasant. He is a government actuary.

Figures are McCoy's specialty. He works with them, talks about them and dreams of them.

The present revenue law, which it is estimated, will raise about $6,000,000,000 this year, has its origin in the ingenious mind of McCoy.

USED GERMAN IDEAS
Back in 1913, when an income tax was first proposed, there was almost nothing upon which to base estimates of the amount of money the levies might bring.

McCoy made a study of the various forms of taxation in Europe. He found that the English system could not be applied here satisfactorily. He took up the German method of taxation, and he liked it so well that our present tax system is largely based upon the German system.

But there is hope ahead for the income tax payer. In 1920 the strain upon your purse will not be so great as it was during the present year. The strain will be less by $2,000,000,000, according to McCoy.

There will also be a reduction of the tax incomes of corporations. The present rate is 12 per cent on the net incomes of corporations, while next year it will be 10 per cent. The war profit tax will be eliminated entirely. The excess profit tax will be cut from 30 to 65 per cent to 20 and 40 per cent.

U. S. TAXES COMPARED

McCoy denied the claim recently made that axes in this country have increased 2000 per cent. In 1914 the annual revenue was about $1,000,000.

This year it will be about $6,000,000 or an increase in taxes of about 600 per cent. The increase in taxes in England is estimated to be about 1100 per cent.

Here is a comparison of the income tax in various countries:

A married man with a salary of $2500 in the United States pays $33 taxes; in England he pays $210.94; in Canada he pays $10; in France he pays $31.25.

A man with an income of $1,000 in the United States pays in taxes $703.030; in England he pays $519.637; in Canada he pays $499.157; in France he pays $123,792.50.

In the United States a man with an income of $5,000,000—and according to McCoy there are 10 to 12 of them—pays $3,733,030 income tax.

WOMAN BREAKS HIP WHEN SHE FALLS AT HER HOME

Mrs. Noah Aurand of Scotts Crossing, living temporarily at 800 Holly street, fell at noon yesterday and suffered a broken hip. The Williams and Davis ambulance removed her to the City hospital.

Mrs. Aurand has been living in the city taking treatments for rheumatism. A sudden attack of it is supposed to have caused the fall.

COOK AT HOTEL HELD ON CHARGE OF THEFT

Robert Prokash, 33, 127½ west Spring street, was arrested Saturday afternoon by police, charged with larceny.

Manager Morrison of the Norval hotel, according to police, filed complaint against the man alleging that he had been stealing articles from the hotel. Candles, linens and other articles, it is alleged, disappeared.

Officers accompanied the man to his room and searched his belongings, finding the stolen articles, they allege. Prokash was the second cook at the Norval.

EXPLOSION FAILED TO STOP FLIVVER, BUT IT'S DAMAGED

"And the Little Old Ford Rumbled Right Along."

This time the flivver sputtered ahead for twenty feet when the explosion of the combined gases in the muffler occurred and a ball of flame burst from the "innards" of the car.

The driver who was passing along east High near Main street Saturday night looked complacently around and continued his way.

Another instance that they will run on their reputation, as "Bill" Fridley says.

MADE DEFENDANT

Breta O. McBeth was made defendant party to the suit of H. S. Moulton against E. A. McBeth to seek payment of an alleged bill for labor and material for the erection of a home by the defendant, in common pleas court Saturday morning.

CHILD SUCCUMBS

Emma Pearl Knittle, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Knittle, 747 Arch avenue, died Saturday at the city hospital as the result of an attack of Bright's disease. Funeral services will be held from the residence Monday at 10 a. m. Burial will be in Woodlawn.

Why Ruin Your Health?

MANY a woman's ills are directly traceable to unnecessary work over the wash tub. A woman is finely and delicately constituted. She is not a machine and laundry work is largely machine work. The cost is trifling too if you let us do it. It may be costly to save at the expense of a break down of your health.

In the summer especially no wise woman or human man will ask wife or servant to do such work, when it can be done so reasonably and carefully by us. We collect and deliver your work promptly.

" LETS GO "

LIMA is to be a great city, if it is not already such. It is the logical center of an immense trading territory. It has the interurban facilities for the passenger traffic from nearby cities. It has the railroad facilities for freight traffic for manufacturers and merchants as well.

LIMA should encourage her industries; should make every effort to aid them in a spirit of co-operation. Lima's future is bound up in the factories whose payrolls keep the wheels moving.

"LET'S GO" is the real slogan for every citizen of Lima to use during the coming months. Let us each do our own little bit towards keeping Lima in the right paths; let us not only "boost" but co-operate.

"LET'S GO"—That's the clear-track signal for Lima.

MUNROE PICKS JACK DEMPSEY TO WIN FROM JESS WILLARD

NOTED CRITIC TELLS WHY CHALLENGER SHOULD COP CONTEST AT TOLEDO WHEN HEAVIES CLASH NEXT FRIDAY

YOUTH AND PUNCH FAVOR MINER

Past Performances, Although Very Unreliable in Forming Opinion, Held to Bear Out This Prediction

(No. 6:—By Jack Munroe)

In my previous articles I have traced the ring careers of champion Jess Willard and the challenger, Jack Dempsey, up to the present day. That was an interesting as well as a comparatively easy task. I have known both fighters for some time and have witnessed several of their most important ring encounters. From the data gleaned from personal acquaintance and spectators at their ring performances I have been able to sum up their dominating traits and criticize strong and weak points which have developed in the course of action within the ropes.

As I stated before this is a comparatively easy thing to do when confronted with the herculean problem of picking a winner between these two boxers. Past performances sometimes go badly askew when used as a medium for picking prize ring winners.

CAPRICES OF PAST PERFORMANCE "DOPE"

For instance, on past performances, Terry McGovern ought surely to have vanquished Young Corbett even up to the night of their second meeting in San Francisco. Both before and after their battle at Hartford, where Terry went down to defeat for the first time in his career, the Brooklyn Terror had decisively whipped men who had either thrashed the Denverite or had given him tough arguments. Yet Corbett could always master Terry. Willie Lewis, the great New York welter and middleweight back in my time, could topple over heavyweights with his great one, two, punch. But he was an easy victim for a man of his own weight, Honey Melody, until the latter began to decline and Willie secured revenge in Paris for two knockouts he had suffered at the hands of the Boston boy.

PICKS DEMPSEY TO BEAT WILLARD

Nevertheless, untrustworthy as are the reasonings of "past performances," they are really the only thing we have to rely on in picking out the respective merits of ring combatants. We note favorite blows, methods & peculiar characteristics of boxers and when pitted against each other try to form a mental picture of how each will operate when matched with some force calculated to minimize its effectiveness. Of some bouts we are as certain how things will work out as we are of the sun's setting. But in a match between men of marked ability "picking a winner" is a proceeding which is little or nothing short of a hazard, be the selection made by the shrewdest judge of fighting qualities. However, even with this warning knowledge, combined with the vagaries of "past performance" indications, we all like to air our opinion one way or the other, supplementing it with the prayer that it will result in an "I told you so."

I have nothing personal against either Willard or Dempsey. Frankly it doesn't matter even a little bit to me which wins. They are both remarkable fighters and whoever is the winner the championship laurels still will be guarded by a most formidable gladiator. I'll hazard a prediction, since unlike golfers we critics must play the "hazards," that Dempsey will defeat Willard. In my boldness I'll go further and try to present a few reasons which account for the "hunch." To me the three prime factors which augur victory for the Colorado boy are:

WHY DEMPSEY SHOULD WIN

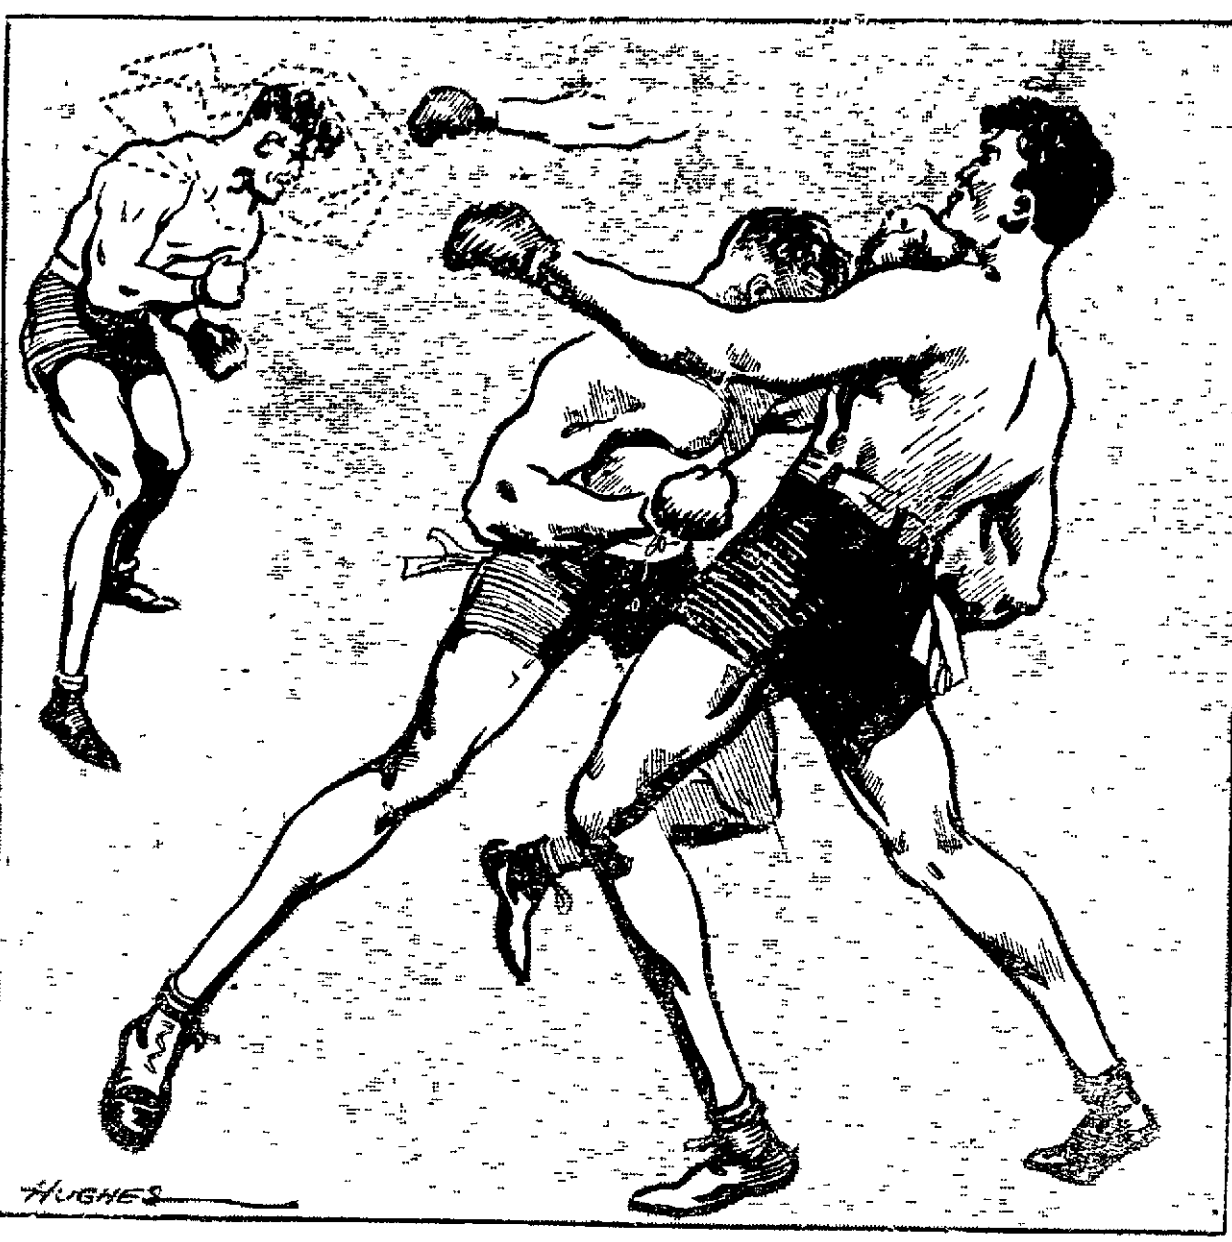

1.—Dempsey is faster than Willard and is a better puncher.

2. Dempsey is in better physical condition than the champion and has the advantage of being about a dozen years younger than Jess.

3. Dempsey has been fighting steadily for the past four years. Willard has been almost entirely inactive and therefore has lost that indispensable quality of fighting form.

Those are my three reasons for stinging along in the Dempsey bandwagon. I have placed them in their relative order of importance as they seem to bear on the outcome of the impending struggle. Now let us take up these points in detail so that I may better impress upon the reader

THE JACK DEMPSEY "WEAVE"

How Jack's head bobbing will outwit the Willard jab and place his knockout blow for him, according to Munroe the conclusions I have reached on the result of the conflict.

DEMPSEY'S SPEED WILL OFFSET PHYSICAL HANDICAP

Few there are who will attempt to dispute the matter of speed between the rival boxers. Jess never has been a fast boxer, never will be or wants to be, from all appearance. For all that he is a great defensive boxer. He wages war flat-footed. Jess doesn't even shuffle after his man in the manner of a Fitzsimmons or a Gans. He props himself on his broad-beamed feet and lynx-like awaits the coming of the foe. Then he shoots his stinging left jab and brings up a right counter if the proper opening presents itself. But Jess is wholly devoid of speed as we associate that element with the roped arena. Jim Corbett had it with his pantomime-like cleverness. Kid McCoy exhibited a consummate though less showy skill. Jim Jeffries, Tom Sharkey, Gus Ruhlin, Fitzsimmons and Maher were men of unceasing activity along purely fighting lines. Tommy Burns was a great little heavyweight and always kept moving after his adversary until he connected with a crushing punch. Speed, in a large measure, is action, reinforced with cleverness in avoiding punishment while "carrying on," or with the alertness for taking advantage of openings for a swift attack. Some fighters create openings by the tury of their advance and their smashing blows. Being a genuine fighting type, free from "trills" Dempsey undoubtedly has "speed." He never resorts to straight boxing but places full dependence in the right of the snipe. Speed, therefore, is as necessary as it is natural to him.

SPEED FREQUENTLY MORE EFFECTIVE THAN CLEVERNESS

Jack relies on his speed to effect openings which the gifted boxer obtains by means of feints and all around fancy work. It is getting the desired result in a different manner, that is all. Thus far efficiently than the boxing strategems of a Corbett or a McCoy. Indeed mere speed if not thwarted by a knockout or a damaging blow, can achieve opening which could not be accomplished by the most dazzling ring craft. It was speed that enabled Jim Corbett to stick twenty-three fast rounds with the giant Jeffries when the former champion came the nearest of any boxer to "coming back." Curiously enough, too, it was speed which proved Gentleman Jim's undoing in that famous bout at Coney beach in the summer of 1900. Corbett was always on the hop looking and jabbing the burly Californian pretty much as he pleased. With such restlessness did Corbett maintain his battery of blows on the Jeffries anatomy that he held a clear lead up to the knockout, despite the fact that he had been felled to the canvas in the nineteenth by a vicious right hander on eye. It was only when Corbett's spirit of over confidence, the decision within reach that he fondered on the black rocks of misfortune. He attempted to mix things with his buxier foreman and the essay proved disastrous. As for Jess and his obligation to the pug's cardinal asset of speed things looked mighty dim for the hairy Leviathan of the ring when the twentieth round opened.

WILLARD'S SPEED CAUGHT CORBETT

James A. Brady, his manager, and the pugilistically astute Tommy Ryan read big Jim a solemn ultimatum just before the bell sent the men out for the twentieth. "You'll have to speed up Jeff if you're going to get him before him," admonished Suarace Tommy. He's got the decision on points now. Put all you've got into it and get over a finisher. It's your only chance."

When the bell clanged Jeffries threw open the throttle of his energies and chased Corbett so industriously that he finally nailed the supple Californian with a sweeping left on the jaw as Jess was rebounding from the ropes where Jeff had pressed him. Jeff had placed faith in a combination of such boxing skill as he had possessed and aggressiveness but it had proved fruitless for twenty-three long rounds. When he abandoned the boxing tactics entirely and concentrated his power in speed alone he attained the coveted prize which he could not win with the art of boxing.

SPED WILL OVERCOME BOXING SUPERIORITY

Willard is conceded to be a better boxer than his sensational challenger, but he is no enlarged edition of Young Grillo. Dempsey's hurricane technique is certain to make it a real fight so that Willard's advantage as a boxer will, I think, be greatly dispensed with.

With Johnson Willard's strength was a strong factor because the dusky champion fought the kind of a battle which frequently staged tests of strength in which Willard always held the upper hand. But Dempsey's style is at such a variance with that of Johnson's that there will be little of the roughing, pushing, and clinching which marked the Jeffries-Johnson and Willard-Johnson struggles.

At any rate both men assert that it will be a cleanly fought fight with each striving for a knockout rather than a decision. Dempsey's speed and the contention of Willard that he is out to crumple his opponent in his time should eliminate, to a great extent, the advantage of strength and boxing skill which are supposed to rest with the champion.

SHARKEY'S SPEED DEFEATED MCCOY

But to revert for a brief period to the topic of speed as an agency for winning ring battles. It was certainly this quality, allied with robust strength which enabled Tom Sharkey to score over the resolute Kid McCoy. The Hoosier kid had flattened the sailor twice with his murderous cork-screw, in addition to handling the mariner a three for one exchange of blows for almost nine rounds. But he couldn't diminish Tom's speed and the persistent Tar, always boxing in, finally landed one of his vagrant wallops ending the battle.

Stanley Ketchell's speed was a paramount factor in the Michigan "Assassin's" amazing ring exploits. Stanley was far from being a boxer, but he had something to deliver and he never allowed a bout to drag. Stanley's plunging attack and his untiring speed marked the undoing of many a clever antagonist.

JACK DEMPSEY'S "WEAVING" ATTACK

Many contend that Dempsey will never be able to get by Willard's long and powerful left which has held McCarty, Moran and Johnson at bay. Nevertheless I think he will. Both Fitzsimmons and Ketchell to whom I have likened, in some degree, the present challenger, found natural means to circumvent the discouragement of a menacing left jab. Fitz and Ketchell had their shifts which generally solved the enigma of the jab. Dempsey utilizes a "weave" or tossing of the head and body which has proved baffling to the swiftness of jabs. Unless I am mistaken Willard will be confronted with a most confusing object for that battering ram left of his when he meets Dempsey "the weaver" at Toledo on the Fourth. It is simply a corroboration of the axiom that in eight cases out of ten a real fighter can break up the defense of the best boxer.

WHEN THE BEST FIGHTER BEAT THE BEST BOXER

The best boxer met the best fighter when Corbett and Fitzsimmons clashed at Coney in '97. For fourteen gruelling rounds freckled Bob took a hard beating without complaint and with a valorous fortitude. In the sixth round particularly Bob, weakened by Corbett's punishing left jab, his lungs clogged with blood, slipped to the canvas almost out. He had considerably difficulty finishing the round and at the bell the Corbett supporters were offering any odds on their man. Fitz, however, started even his most ardent henchmen when he sprang from his angle of the ring at the bell for the seventh, almost catching the confident Corbett arising from his stool. From then on Fitz, the fighter grappled with the supreme boxer with renewed determination to break up Corbett's marvellous defense and deliver his crusher. The opening arrived in the fourteenth and Fitz reaped the reward of his patient courage.

GREAT BOXER

Stanley Ketchell had an experience almost parallel to that of Fitz at Coney when he met Philadelphia Jack O'Brien in New York. O'Brien wasn't much behind Corbett for cleverness. He had a most tantalizing left jab which the dogged Ketchell bumped against many times before his shift, quite like that of the great Fitzsimmons, stretched Jack senseless on the floor a few seconds before the finish bell.

HOW FITZ'S SHIFT RAILED THE JAB

Fitzsimmons's favorite demonstration of the "shift" was to bring the right to the jaw and the left to the "solar plexus." To accomplish this his right foot served as an "anchor" or brace while every fibre of his ponderous body, topped by those massive shoulders, was thrown into the smash he loosened. Fitz, the fighter, found the best boxer powerless against the ravages of his "shift."

When the nulling was the most intense Ruby Robert would abruptly halt and make a feint with his right. A shuffling transfer of the left foot to the rear, with the simultaneous action of the left mitt to the opponent's unsuspecting jaw, followed instantly with a leveling right to the stomach. That was the Fitzsimmons knockout. Ketchell's method was pretty much the same. Stanley was constantly shifting from one side to the other. An opponent could expect a blow with the added weight of shoulder power from almost any angle. The tactics employed by Jack Dempsey are very much akin.

Dempsey's "weave" as effective as the "shift" is quite unlike anything I have ever seen in the ring before. Just as Fitzsimmons and Ketchell the fighters, lacking boxing polish were protected by their "shifts" so Dempsey is endowed with his "weaving" and boxing trick which has proved as potent a power as the renowned "shift."

Dempsey's head is seldom seen except when he has ploughed his way to close quarters and is busy engaged in dealing a finisher. With his eyes he matches the cunning of the gloved fist in front of him, thrusting it here and there, as if playing tag with the leathern enemy. Then when Jack figures his raven black top piece has outguessed his upholstered foe, the brain inside orders a cannon-ball advance. Then comes the job of mopping up when he has reached the front line trench and Dempsey attacks body and jaw with a gusto.

DEMPSEY A BETTER, NOT HARDER PUNCHER THAN JESS

When I say that Dempsey is a better puncher than Willard I do not mean, necessarily, that he strikes a more powerful blow. I think the blow that I saw Jess drop Johnson with was as fearful a salute as any boxer ever delivered. But what I do mean is that Dempsey is a more prolific knockout puncher than the champion. His record proves that. Dempsey hits a snappy wallop from almost any angle, and with either fist. Jess, while a terrific thumper is at his best when hitting straight from the shoulder or with a right upper-cut. But to drive in this latter blow Willard must be presented with an alluring target. In a word, Jess propels more knockout power toward an opponent than Willard does, in my estimation. This, which would be difficult to say in figures, nevertheless gives preference when it comes to the of one or the other termination about by a knockout.

MUNROE LOOKS OVER MEN IN TRAINING

I have just made a hurried Toledo to look over the boxer note their condition. Willard, remarkably fine and has taken almost unbelievable amount of weight. Still I should say that Jess is in finer fettle chiefly because nature has so ordered. He has glow of youth over his entire and every movement betokens springiness of youth, unimpaired by the excesses of wear and tear years. Dempsey at twenty-three is about a dozen years younger than Willard, a fact not to be overlooked. It is said that Dempsey's only rests in a quick knockout. On the other hand I think that Dempsey's chances will improve as the bout matures as his condition can meet demands of the struggle. We may find to his dismay that his the unflagging stamina of Havana LAY OFF WILL DO JESS NO GOOD.

And now for my third reason, taking the Dempsey end. Jack has been playing his fast-tuffing steadily for the last four years. He has developed a fighting form a knockout punch and has pressed each for the final test which is the five on the Fourth. Fighting him is a business just as clerking to some people. He has been a to the red-blooded business of puging and being punched within a enclosure almost as regularly with as the clerk to his ledger. Jess it is different. Since his feat of Johnson in Havana four ago Willard has gone practically to disuse as a world's heavyweighing champion. It isn't as easy "come back" as they think. Jeff thought he would feel as much "home" in the arena as ever after long lay off. He found himself ly out of touch with things pugil when he walked out to meet John at Reno.

Regular fighting is almost as essential to a first class fighter as regular hours of sleep. There is no tories to store up the system, confidence and dauntless fighting eury. After Fitz had been whipped by Jeffries for the first time he made a determined effort to win back crown from the giant Californian. He was the period of two weeks, within the period of two weeks—and Bob was thirty-six at the time. It has been remarked since that Fitz met Jeffries at the time when was fired with an almost irresistible KITCHEN, BEAT A fighting spirit he would have v. quished Jeff.

That of course is open to considerable dispute but there is no gainsaying the fact that regularity in fighting has much to do with a fighter's success. Willard may find this out his discomfort at Toledo on the Fourth.

WILL SELL ARMY MEAT TO CITIZENS

Baker Announces Plan For Disposal of Surplus Supply

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—Secretary of War Baker in Cleveland Saturday said that the army's surplus supply of canned meats will be sent to any city that desires to sell to consumers at public markets on a commission basis. This means that Ohio cities, strapped for funds, can order the meats and not pay for them until they have disposed of them over the counter to consumers.

"I will fix the price," said Baker. "Arrangements, however, should be made with the war department's surplus property division. All that will be necessary, will be responsible city officials to designate how many carloads they believe can be sold in their cities."

Baker expressed gratification over the signing of the peace treaty.

"It is the conclusion of a great work," he said. "The happiest feature of it is that it leaves the world's mind now free to take up the problems of construction and reconstruction."

BETTING TAKES SUDDEN TURN IN JACK DEMPSEY'S FAVOR

INDEPENDENTS WILL MEET U. S. FEDS TODAY—ENTRIES FOR RACES ON FOURTH INCREASE

THE suddenest sort of a shift in the odds on the big fight has just taken place.

This time they've veered toward Jack Dempsey. Jess Willard is still the favorite but it's by a reduced majority in the betting prices.

Instead of the odds being now 10 to 8 and 7 with Willard as favorite, they are now 10 to 9 and 8 with Willard still the favorite, but the betting commissioners say that it won't take much more of a pressure by Dempsey backers to force the betting back to practically even money.

This veering of the plunging sentiment came with a rush that startled the price-makers for they had been predicting the day before that the odds would shift another point in Willard's favor within 24 hours. The nearer the fight approaches the more Dempsey money there seems to be in sight.

This is readily accounted for by the continued news from Toledo as to the great showing by Dempsey in his workouts, including his knockouts of Big Bill Tate, a sparring partner who rates as a real topnotch fighter in the class with Harry Wills and Sam Langford.

These knockouts are generally accepted as the real thing and not mere camouflage. Furthermore, all ringside critics, even including those who are the strongest believers in Jess Willard's chances for victory, agree that Dempsey is now in wonderful shape and just aching for the day of the real scrap.

On the other hand, even the critics who favor Willard's chances, agree that Jess seems to be taking things too easy, that his practice bouts are a joke compared with those of the challenger, and that he doesn't seem to regard the coming battle seriously enough.

Furthermore, the sentiment seems to be gaining headway that a champion should not be made too topheavy a favorite just because he is champion and bigger than the other fellow.

DEMPSEY NEARLY LOSES CHIEF SPARRING AID

Jack Dempsey nearly lost his chief sparring partner, Big Bill Tate. Tate is, Bill had packed up his odds and announced he was leaving the Dempsey camp for good and all.

"I like Jack Dempsey and would like to keep on sticking around, but I can't stand being knocked out every day," announced Big Bill. "It's getting my goat."

Then Jack promised that he'd hold back his blows in all his mixups with Dempsey and Tate.

DANGER OF DEMPSEY OVERTRAINING

The one big danger that now confronts Dempsey is that he may overtrain. He's now in practically perfect trim for the big fight. If it were to take place there'd be no doubt of Jack being in the very pink of condition.

But he's in such wonderful shape that some of his friends are afraid he may not be able to keep from becoming a bit stale.

"My money goes on Jack Dempsey in this fight," Leo P. Flynn, manager of the fight, said.

POOR JAMAICA KID HAS HIS TROUBLES

Trainer Jimmy de Forrest cautioned Dempsey Thursday as he mauled poor Jamaica Kid. Dempsey's fists landed with positiveness every time he lets go of a punch.

The kid was being slammed all about the ring. Jack also took one crack at Jack Malone that made the middleweight grunt and hang on.

"He can't hold a punch," Malone complained when he came out of the ring. "He doesn't want to hit me, but that blow I took in the stomach was the hardest I ever felt."

Willard's work was very slow in comparison. Only with Walter Monaghan did the champion show anything and that was very brief.

The tactics of the champion make one wonder what will happen when Jack Dempsey smacks over one of his famous sleep-producers.

There is no doubt in the minds of most critics regarding Willard's ability to take anything Dempsey sends over for a time. But the force of these pile-driving blows may rouse the champion to a fury that will sweep Dempsey off his feet. On the other hand these repeated blows may send the champion to slumberland.

DEMPSEY AND WILLARD NEVER MEET

Altho Jack Dempsey's camp is less than a mile from the spot where Jess Willard does his daily workouts they never meet.

Nor have they ever seen each other. Dempsey doesn't begin his training sessions until a half hour or more has elapsed after Willard gets thru.

LIMA STRENGTHENED BY NEW CATCHER

With a new catcher behind the bat, the Lima Independents will face the Cincinnati U. S. Feds for what is considered by the local management as the hardest game of the season. LaRue, a former college star will be the new backstop.

Coming to the local aggregation from Greenville, recommended as high class material the catcher will fill the bill to perfection, according to local managers. Having performed with the Lorain club, at different times, and having played the nine man game while in the service, he should be in ideal condition for the contest.

Pierce will do the pitching again this week end, for the locals. He is said to be in much better condition than he was at the last game, and it is probable that he will show the visitors a much better fight.

The Cincinnati aggregation is coming to the city in automobiles, bringing a party of 14 men with them. They will take no chances on losing the game and are therefore bringing a sufficient number of players to make substitutions if necessary. Few will start the game on the mound for them.

The town state management, in a letter to Bernie Holleran, manager of the local club declared that they were sure of a victory. They claim their aggregation to be one of the best in the state, and expect to live up to their reputation, they say, by whipping the locals.

No announcement has been made as yet by the local management as to who the attraction for the Fourth of July will be. Negotiations are under way to bring a strong team here.

Blow by blow and round by round reports of the championship bout at Toledo will be read at the contest. Reports will be furnished by the Lima Daily News.

CINCINNATI'S STAR THIRD SACKER

Shrimper doesn't strike one as being a sensational artist on the diamond, from his appearance in ordinary street clothes, but they say he is some wiz when he gets into a baseball uniform. He plays third base for the Cincinnati U. S. Feds.

East Iron, Chalmers and Deisel Win

The East Iron, Chalmers and Deisel-Wemmer teams were the victors in the Industrial League conflicts on the diamond Saturday.

Overpowering the Garford aggregation 10 to 6, the Iron workers romped away with the game. Gail Brown and Hitz did the battering work for the East Iron and Mahan and Teller worked for the Garford.

Featuring Gordon's pitching with 20 strikeouts, the Chalmers team defeated the Gramm-Bernstein in an eleven inning contest. The final score was 4 to 3.

The cigar makers overcame the Ohio Steel outfit in a nearly fought contest, by just two runs. When the nine inning were over the score stood 6 to 4.

Reds Win Last Game Of Series

PERIOD OF QUIET
PREVALES ABOUT
STATE'S CAPITAL*Legislators Gone, Supreme Court
Taking Rest and Gov.
Cox III*AUDITOR'S OFFICE IS INACTIVE*Treasurer Prepares to Close up
Fiscal Year—Red Cross
Has Exhibit

(By GEORGE T. BLAKE.)

COLUMBUS.—With the departure of the legislature and the advent of the vacation period the quiet days have come upon the statehouse. The supreme court has completed the hearing of cases and is about ready to close down for its customary summer rest. The state liquor license department no longer exists, having been dissolved by the new prohibition law.

Because of the absence of Governor Cox as a result of mild illness, during the past ten days, there has been a marked falling off in the activities at the executive chamber. The governor is much improved as a result of his rest and is expected to return to his office early this week.

Even at Auditor of State Donaher's office things have been unusually quiet. It has been at least three weeks since the auditor has blown anyone out of the water.

At the adjutant general's department they are getting ready for a lot of business. Within a short time two regiments of infantry, which will be the nucleus of the new National Guard, will be mustered into the service.

The department which has as much to do at this time as any is the blue sky securities department, in charge of Judge P. A. Berry, which, as a matter of fact, never is able to keep ahead of its work. The department is growing rapidly.

In the treasury department, Treasurer Rudy Archer is getting ready to close up business for the end of the fiscal year on Monday, June 30. The balance in the treasury will be around $3,000,000. That seems like a large sum, but it will look sick when struck by appropriations made against it by the present general assembly.

Secretary H. H. Shirer of the board of state charities, which is located in the Stoneman building, made a trip to the statehouse Friday to see if his department could be moved into the quarters in the top story of the judiciary building, vacated by the state liquor license department. He was informed that the veterinary division of the state agricultural department was to get the rooms.

Later in the summer the legislative committee which is to visit all state departments to seek out positions which can be abolished without detriment to the state and to find where places can be consolidated at a financial saving, will begin its work.

The blue sky securities department taxation committee which is to prepare permanent taxation relief bills will also hold a few sessions during the summer. It is probable, however, that the bulk of its work will be done next fall.

The American Red Cross has set up an exhibit in the rotunda of the state house, where attendants will distribute literature explaining the work and accomplishments of this organization. This exhibit will remain during the period of the Methodist Centenary in Columbus.

29 PASS EXAMS.County Teachers Will Be Granted Certificates Soon

Twenty-nine teachers of the rural schools successfully passed the midsummer examinations held at the office of the County Superintendent C. A. Arganbright Friday. Certificates will be granted shortly before the opening of the fall term.

Shortage of teachers thruout the state for rural districts still prevails despite the increase in salary recently voted by county boards.

An unusual demand for teachers from all parts of the state have reached the county superintendent in Lima. The supply is unequal to meet the demand he says.

BIG MORTGAGE FORECLOSED

A mortgage held by A. J. Dunn against W. R. Munaugh, Anna Hoverman and Clarence A. Hill amounting to $11,000 was ordered foreclosed in a decision of Judge Klingler in common pleas court Saturday morning. The Liberty hotel, east North street, was involved.

RUTH CRUGER SLAIN BY HIS WIFE,
NEW DEFENSE OF ALFREDO COCCHI*Ruth Cruger (above), Alfredo
Cocchi and Marie Cocchi.*BOLOGNA, Italy.—(Special)—

On trial for his life here, Alfredo Cocchi, in whose bicycle shop in New York pretty Ruth Cruger was slain on February 13, 1917, has repudiated his confession of guilt and now seeks to fasten upon his wife, Marie Cocchi, all blame for the murder. In shifting the blame and explaining away the confession he previously made, Cocchi told this story to the prosecutor:

"My wife killed the girl. She thought every woman who entered my store was unduly interested in me. Looking out of the windows of our home, at No. 75 Manhattan street, she saw Miss Cruger go into my place of business. Instantly she rushed downstairs, crossed the street and came in.

bending over a desk writing her address that I might send to her home the skates she was to leave to be sharpened. My wife seized a hammer and struck the young woman three terrific blows on the head. When I saw the young woman was dead I helped my wife hide the body."

Cocchi said he made all the previous statements in an effort to shield his wife, but he was now going to tell the real truth. He added that he had heard his wife was "slowly dying because her conscience had made her ill."

In reporting the Cocchi statement, the prosecutor asserted he took no stock in it.

"It was sensational, but full of lies," he said. Not only Bologna, but the entire country of Italy, is deeply moved by the terrible crime committed by this degenerate."

Although little credit is put in Cocchi's eleventh hour allegation, S. Venturini, his counsel, seized upon this latest version of the crime as a means of convincing the jury that the woman and not his client was the slayer. It is assumed that if Cocchi takes the witness stand he will repeat the statement he made to the prosecutor.

Although Ruth Cruger's disappearance was reported to the New York police in February, 1917, and although it was known that she went to Cocchi's shop to have her skates sharpened, detectives scoffed at the murder theory. The fact that Cocchi disappeared did not change their opinion. The body was found in the shop June 16 by Mrs. Grace Humiston. It had been buried and several searches were made before it was discovered. Cocchi was found in Italy and arrested. An effort to extradite him failed.

Gossip of the Movies

We have been hearing a number of things about Agnes Ayres recently and we thought perhaps it would be interesting to pass them on for the special benefit of Agnes Ayres fans. First Agnes is but twenty-three years old and she admits it, but her looks would almost convince one that she was a few years younger than twenty.

In her very young days she wanted to become a lawyer and so she went to the University of Chicago and took to wearing tortoise shell rimmed glasses and flat heels. But it did not take her long to decide that she preferred the boards to the bar so she started on her histrionic career in stock company. She played at the College theatre and the Marlowe theatre. Then she was attracted to the screen and played first with the Essanay in her home city.

She is a slight little person with brown hair and hazel eyes. She has a pet dog "Snooks" and she claims that he brings her luck for he finds four-leaf clovers for her. (You do not have to believe that, but it's one of the many things we heard about her and so we had to put it down.)

At present Miss Ayres is making pictures for Vitaphone's "The Gamblers." She spent a week in Tarrytown during the filming of some of the scenes and now they have named a theatre after her and are thinking of naming one of the principal streets after her.

MUSIC AND THE MUSE

Here's what you'd see if you gained access to the Goldwyn studios now.

There Geraldine Farrar and Mabel Normand are both acting in the same glass stage. Miss Farrar, at one end, is playing tragedy to the music of a moaning cello, ever and anon slipping over to the organ which is always a part of the Farrar setting, and sitting down to play snatches of grand opera. On the other end of the stage is Mabel Normand, frolicking with comedy, to a jazz band accompaniment.

So far no casualties are reported.

Lillian Gish and her mother have returned from New York and are in Los Angeles.

W. S. Hart is filming scenes in Louisiana.

Dorothy Phillips has finished another feature, "The Right to Happiness."

Monroe Salisbury is now under the direction of Rollin S. Sturgeon.

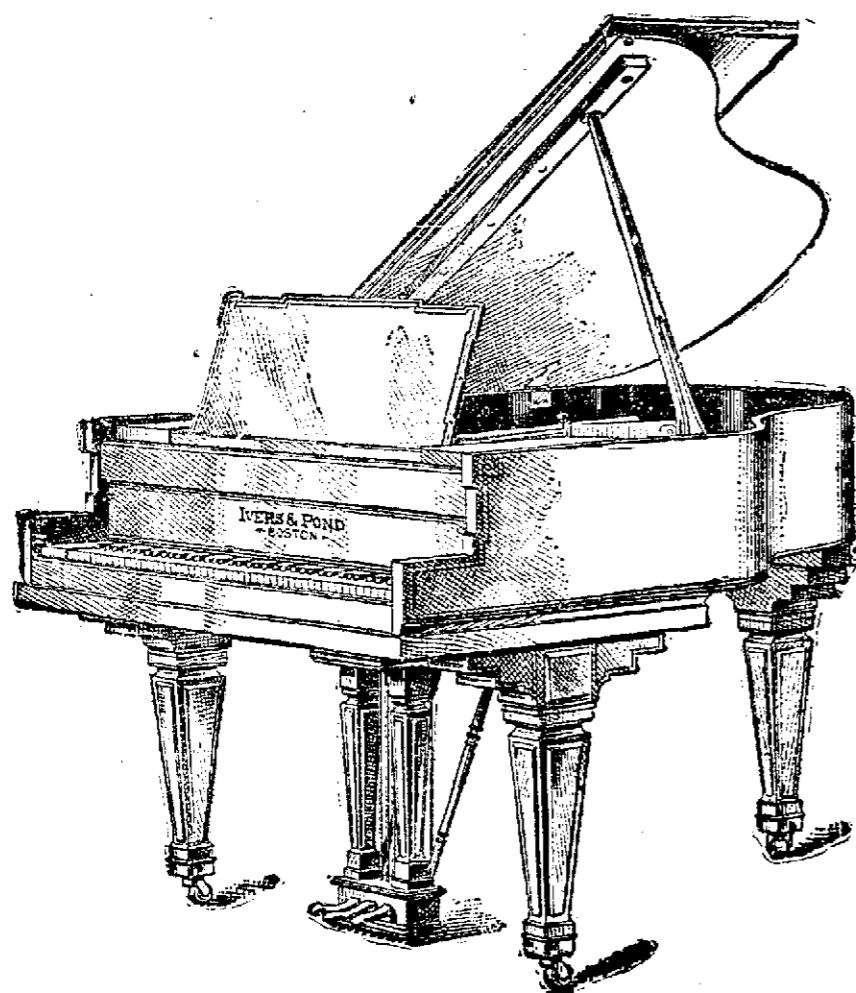

D. W. Griffith is in Los Angeles after launching "Broken Blossoms" in the East.

York Play Center*REVIEW OF THE RIALTO*Uptown District Settles Down for Summer—New Buildings Are Planned

By DIXIE HINES

NEW YORK.—Not to be outdone by the uptown theatrical element, the band of Greenwich Village denizens, who run their own amusement factory, opened this week a "follies" which promises to give the older group of follies a run for popularity. Greenwich Village is establishing in its own right, and by its own right, a district separate and quite distinct from all others. It was here, let us remind the reader, that "The Better Ole" started on its career of success, and the new follies, although contributed largely by uptowners, notably in the person of Beesie McCoy, is quite otherwise quite distinct, commendable and successful as any summer show in town, and this means a lot. It has been the custom to deride these efforts as being semi-professional, so to speak, but with "John Ferguson" one of the biggest successes in town, and a success won under so-called semi-professional auspices, and the new follies doing a one hundred per cent success down town, it is time the regular producers and their retinue, "gave a thought" to the insurrectionists within their field. A further review of the revue will be given later.

The uptown district has settled down to a summer of apparent prosperity. No closings have been announced for a fortnight, and the plays now in operation are being liberally patronized not so much by those of the greater city as by the visitors. It is estimated that half a million strangers enter and depart from Manhattan island each day, and it is this army of reckless spendthrifts who make it possible for New York playhouses to declare dividends in the winter and remain open at all during the summer.

New Yorkers prefer to take their ease in the open during the summer, especially when they may be regaled by some of the best music that is offered during the entire year. On the green at Columbia College, Edwin Franko Foldman, a bandmaster of note, conducting an excellent military band, gives thrice a week concerts, and an attendance of 10,000 to 20,000 is the rule rather than the exception.

Another musical event of international importance is the forthcoming tour of the United States of the most celebrated symphony orchestra of Italy, the Orchestra of Saint Cecilia, sometimes known as the Augustum Orchestra. This noted musical organization comes to the United States by arrangement with the Italian Royal Government, and the American committee is headed by Otto H. Kahn, the noted patron of the arts. The first concert will be held at the Metropolitan Opera House in October, and thereafter it will visit sixty of the leading cities of the United States under the auspices of local musical and civic organizations. Richard G. Herndon will manage the tour with Frank Taylor Kintzing as his associate. This is the event of the coming season.

The new group of playhouses for Broadway will include at least three new buildings and one change in name. The latter is the Belmont Theatre which will be changed to the Theatre Parisien, a new French company taking possession early in October for a season of twenty weeks. This is one of the novelties of the season, and the interesting intelligence is given that when the season in New York has terminated, the company will be sent on tour while another company of French Players, which will start the season as a touring organization, will be brought to the Metropolis. The latter will give the classic and standard plays of France, while the first named will be a novelty in every sense. The programme will be transplanted from Paris, and will embrace a short comedy of farce, followed by a short operetta and interspersed with musical and dramatic novelties. A company of French artists will be brought to the United States in September under Robert Casadesu.

New York players and musical artists have taken a deep interest in the bill now before congress for the establishment of a National Conservatory in this country, similar to those which exist in France, Italy and other European countries. It has long been the aim and ambition of leading critics and enthusiasts to have such an institution here, but the chances of fulfillment have not been very promising until the present. Ethel Newcomb, one of the most distinguished international concert pianists, an American by birth and preference, has been one of the leading spirits in its advocacy. As she has won her greatest success abroad, and has been long a resident of the musical centers of Europe, her efforts have won substantial recognition in this country. She holds medals and high esteem from foreign governments.

Next month the dancing masters of the United States will come to New York to receive tuition in the new dances which are to form the basic of popularity in the next season. These dancing teachers, who are taught the steps by Veronine Vestoff and Sonia Serova, the former a noted Russian dancer and the latter an English speaking artist with all the cleverness of a genius, have been chosen to teach these steps, and according to this interesting pair the dance style is becoming more intelligent and less jazzy.

Motion Pictures

RIALTO—"The Fire Flingers" which serves to bring Rupert Julian back to the screen after a year's absence, following his great success in "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," and which will be shown at the Rialto theatre today, has an interesting history.

The film version is an adaptation of William J. Neidig's serial story which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and it might be said that the story is the outgrowth of almost twenty years of thought and development.

In 1899 when Mr. Neidig was a free lance newspaper man in San Francisco and lived with Marie Johnson, Wallace and Will Irwin and other Stanford writers in "Bellet Burgess" old Neighborhood House, he wrote a short story called "The Fire Flingers" for "The Family Journal," a new magazine.

The editor was enthusiastic about it and Neidig was confident that he had at last got started toward a successful career as a magazine writer. However, like many other new magazines "The Family Journal" was short of funds. The editor found it impossible to keep up until "The Fire Flingers" could be published.

Hence, when Neidig waited several months for word from the magazine, without receiving either check or returned manuscript, he became nervous. He went to the editor, to find to his surprise, a padlock on "The Family Journal's" door. The one copy of "The Fire Flingers" story was on the opposite side of the door.

Mr. Neidig returned home and temporarily forgot the matter. Several years passed before he thought of it again. When he did he determined to develop the story further and expand it to novel length.

For over fifteen years he added bits to the basic idea and wrote various episodes of the story, when time permitted. About a year ago he submitted to the Saturday Evening Post a complete novel. This was accepted and published in serial form. More recently it has been published in book form by Dodd, Mead & Co., and now comes the Universal film version.

LYRIC—Winsome Alice Brady will be seen today and Monday at the Lyric in an unusual story, "The World to Live In." This play is the story of a tinpanner, one of the kind of young women who come to the city every year with no kin, no money, nothing but a wild desire for happiness and "the world to live in." They work for their living and play at being pals with the gilded youths who pay their way. They look like real metal, but they ring hollow. They are not bad, they are not good, just tinpanners.

For Tuesday and Wednesday "The Manx Mann" will be presented.

A big Goldwyn feature has been secured for July 4th and the two days following. Theatre audiences will feel while seeing "The Eternal Magdalene" that it is a story of their city at the moment; that it deals with affairs of immediate concern to the spectators; that just outside the walls of the theatre in which they are sitting they will see upon making their exit the unhappy or gaudy creatures who have just lived in their minds and eyes through the medium of the screen.

It is to be wondered whether "The Eternal Magdalene" is not really the first time that a bold screen producing intelligence has ever deliberately set out to create a drama of pity.

MAJESTIC—Annette Kellerman, champion swimmer and favorite screen actress is the amphibious star of the William Fox super-production, "Queen of the Sea," which comes to the Majestic Theatre for 2 days, Sunday and Monday. Miss Kellerman's unique talents, both as a thespian and a natural artist, are well known to the picture-loving public from "A Daughter of the Gods" and other aquatic productions. In "Queen of the Sea," she plays a naiaid in a submarine fairy story designed to display her abilities as a swimmer and high-diver in the most spectacular and sensational style.

The picture is packed with thrilling stunts and dramatic situations, and the hair-raising climax is a scene where Miss Kellerman, walking a wire 85 feet in the air, is suddenly precipitated into the water by the severing of the slender strand.

EMPIRE—Annette Kellerman, shapely "Queen of the Sea," is the aquatic star at the Empire theatre for two days beginning today. Those who remember her famous picture, "A Daughter of the Gods," are promised in this latest William Fox submarine fairy story even more sensational swimming and high-diving stunts, combined with real dramatic situations. The art of condensation has been applied to this feature picture so that thrill follows thrill in constant crescendo, until Miss Kellerman attains a hair-raising climax with her dive of 85 feet from a high wire into the breakers below.

This comes as a logical part of the story, where the heroine is escaping from a lofty tower by walking a wire cable across a chasm, when the villain cuts the slender strand, and at the same time the tower is blown up. It is a thrill worth going miles to see, whereas you only have to go to the Empire theatre.

ROYAL—Everyone will be delighted to learn of the return of Olive Thomas at the Royal today and tomorrow in the very story of this little girl who first won fame as a dancer in the Ziegfeld Follies. "The Follies Girl" is the title role of the picture and is a clever portrayal of how a vivacious and affectionate little chorus girl revived an interest in life for wealthy old grandpa. Unquestionably this is one of the best roles ever selected for Miss Thomas and please all. In addition to this feature can be seen another of the Triangle two-reel Keystone comedy starring Chester Conklin in "A Tugboat Romeo."

Tuesday and Wednesday June 29 and 30, George McQuarry, Irvin Cummings and Muriel Ostriche will present another of the World famous pictures, entitled "The Bluffers" and which is one of the best society dramas ever offered in screen form.

Thursday and Friday will be shown a picture which has won a firm reputation in book form before being placed in screen form, and that is Jules Verne's famous novel roles.

"Around the World in Eighty Days." It was stories by such men which created the many ideas of our inventors and which were fully responsible for such famous inventions as the submarine, aero and dirigible balloon.

DREAMLAND—At Dreamland today will be shown the second famous "Demon Shadow" stories, this one being titled "Stolen Fortune."

STRAND—Sessue Hayakawa star attraction at the Strand today and tomorrow in the film "The Pride of His Race" shows this famous actor in what is Jules Verne's famous novel roles.

S MART gowns made of the roller towel, and coats and hats from the kitchen oilcloth. :: ::

KITCHEN INSPIRATION

By MARGARET ROHE

Said the kitchen stove to the kitchen sink.
"Now what do you think of that;
They've taken the oilcloth off the tubs,
"To make in a coat and hat!"

Said the kitchen sink to the kitchen stove,
"That's naught to what I'll tell you;
They've even taken the roller towel,
"To make in a dress or two."

NEW YORK.—Designers have delved into the four corners of the earth for their inspirations. From the Orient, they have snatched barbaric gorgeousness. From the outskirts of civilization they have brought the scant skirts of the Hottentots and other denizens of the torrid zone, who spurn nether garments almost as much as the modern Parisienne. We have had wild Western and Indian influences mingling with our dressing and peasant pleasantries and Cossack costumes with Bolshevik trimmings from the Russian steppes. Spain and China have been combed for fashion hints and now the poor desperate designers haven't a single new weird foreign fashion center to turn to.

That's probably why a couple of summers ago they were driven to the wall of their own domestic domiciles for inspiration and, having sealed it, landed in the bathroom, where they proceeded to evolve amazing frocks and turbans out of the terry-cloth bath towels and mats.

Now their fiendish ingenuity and sartorial sleuthing has taken them below stairs and in the culinary department they seek and find their newest confections.

Out of the ordinary oilcloth, like the kitchen tubs and tables have worn for years, the smartest and most swagger of motor coats and travel togs are made. Aside from their really attractive appearance, they have the double charm of being also practical and durable and they shed both dust and moisture like perfect ducks.

Thanks possibly to the Bohemian studio dwellers of Greenwich Village, whose oilcloth splashes behind the one-burner gas pocket kitchen range just must match up with the rest of the studio color scheme, oilcloth now comes in many varied shades. Lovely Dutch blue, glowing orange, rich he-na, coolish green and warmish rose now add themselves to the imitation wood or marble, patterned on a plain black or white oilcloth of our early kitchen memories. We have been used to the plain black or white sail-or shape rain and sport hats, but in these new colorings the most coquet-ish and quaintly attractive close-fitting motor bonnets and turbans are created to match up the swager oil-cloth coats.

Two or more color combinations are used in the smartest of the oil-cloth motor coat and hat models and, of course, there are also effective oil-cloth bags to carry on the color scheme and on the arm.

As for the smart linen suits and dresses converted from the natural color linen of the roller towels, with their red and blue borders used effectively for trimming, the result simply wipes all other linen costumes off the sartorial map.

One of the most attractive models has short sleeves, finished with a band of the red and blue striped border. The stripes also run around the neck and straight down either side of the waist and the skirt, to simulate a panel, which on the waist is filled in with a little gilet of solid stripes, sewed together horizontally. Cunning square pockets outlined with the stripes show on the skirt and a parasol of the plain toweling, with a border of the stripes, completes the novel toilet. It seems only fitting to make one's toilet with a towel, after all.

This time, indeed, the designers seem to have done well to invade the backstairs' realms and drag roller towels and oilcloth, Cinderella-like, out of the kitchen to become right royal raiment, but the next question is, "Where do we go from here?"

BLUEM'S

Over 30 Years of Value Giving

Between the two extremes of human nature, it is questionable whether either wins when put to the long, gruelling test of a lifetime.

For instance there is the party who moves and lives with mathematical precision. Then the party whose daily action is in a spirit of utter abandon.

One swings on the pendulum of regularity; the other flies away from the circle of precision in a tangent according to the mood then in existence.

In storekeeping, there is but one true, sure-winning course. And it is neither of the above extremes.

It is the policy of this institution to choose the road without needless mathematical delay—and then to keep it with eyes out to every side for a better path.

BUT WHO WANTS TO LIVE IN JAPAN?

Dear Roy—We all knew the movie censor was in the habit of making deep incisions in mushy films. But facts at hand regarding the number of feet of film that may be given to a kiss bring curious facts to light. Different states impose different limitations, among the most stringent being thirty feet. More than 3,000 osculations disappeared under the influence of the shears in the past six months. And not only this, but in Japan kisses in the movies have recently been entirely eliminated.

Business Conditions

HOME AND FOREIGN demands have continued insistent throughout the entire month of June, and notwithstanding the rising tide of production there is increasing scarcity of supplies. The lowest period of prices is believed to be at least temporarily over and still higher prices seem inevitable. The element of time is greater than these higher prices according to experts in the building trades, and it will cost more to wait than to proceed with the tide. It is even a question whether in the next ten years manufacturing and raw products can catch up with demand.

MOTOR COMPANIES now reaching their maximum output are finding demand always six months ahead of them. The same is true in all lines of merchandise, merchants being unable to secure duplicates or better than advance guarantees. Work for the mechanic is everywhere available and the shortage of labor exists right here in the Lima district, despite low tide in the larger industries.

LOCALLY, MUNICIPAL WORK is slow in starting and the first of July finds only Baxter street under course of improvement. The other work will follow during the summer months, but contractors are already finding labor hard to engage. For domestic service, the supply in Lima is deplorable and at least two or three hundred domestics could be used in homes here at from $5 to $10 per week.

LIMA CITY CONTINUES to grow like a weed and a drive over the outskirts shows new homes springing up like mushrooms. In the Faurot park section building is extending far beyond Woodlawn and nice homes and cottages have dotted former vacant lots. In the business district it is feared values have in spots been pyramided, but at least three blocks are in course of financing. Industrial Lima is swinging into action again and money for anything is everywhere available.

O O O O O

The War Is Over

WITH THE SIGNING of the final Peace terms by Germany's representatives yesterday, the World's War can be said to be officially over. Now comes the great reconstructive period. Europe is bankrupt; her peoples are in poverty. Domestic conditions in the Central States are deplorable; thousands have lost their all, and families have been woefully depleted in man power.

IN FRANCE IT IS estimated there are now five women for every male and industry must absorb much female labor when manufacturing in the devastated sections is resumed. Germany has buried many of its best artisans; thousands of mechanics who made that country famous are no more; export markets are gone for a half century to come. Upon the United States will fall the burden and the profit of rehabilitation.

TRADE REPORTS SHOW that immediately with the lifting of the blockade there will be insistent demand from the Central Powers for basic commodities. Copper is already forecasted to touch 23c the pound and cotton can be expected to gradually advance. Foodstuffs are not likely to be so needed as basic materials, for the actual signing of peace sends the millions back to the land and production. The war is over and business will resume not only for us here, but for the whole of Europe.

Street Names

WHILE COUNCIL at various times has taken up the matter of street signs this city yet remains woefully lacking in designation of its thoroughfares. A few years ago the delivery boys knew everybody in town and where they lived. Now there are so many changes in service forces that names of streets are becoming a demand to facilitate deliveries.

TEN THERE IS the stranger, who doesn't know Main from Ertel avenue and soundly curses when he attempts to locate the place he wishes to find. Returned soldiers are loud in their praise of Paris, where every corner has its full quota of signs of designation. To the old timer or native street signs mean little, but to the newcomer and to the delivery boy street signs are as important as road signs to the motorist. It is time Lima was placarded with designation marks.

PLAY BALL

Glossary
Game—Something you play.
Sport—Something you see, hear or read about.

Golf is a much less effeminate sport than baseball, because a golf fan is compelled to take a little oxygen on the hoof in order to follow the game.

Our national game is an ideal one for the health of the player. But it is a very doubtful sport for the sedentary fan. For the fan who works with his muscles

Abe Martin

Th' feller that's goin' t' th' devil is allus lookin' for somebody t' go with him. Knockers are th' camp followers o' success.

there is nothing more wholesome or cleaner in the way of open air recreation than a seat in the bleachers Sunday afternoon. For anyone tied to a desk and under nervous tension all day every day, baseball is an ideal game but a ruinous sport.

In order to maintain nerve balance or stability the sedentary brain worker must get open air exercise of some kind and in sufficient amount. If he fails to get the exercise he becomes "nervous" loses poise, grows peevish and quarrels with everybody and his job.

Effeminacy is the trend in human evolution. The sexes approach each other not alone in mental traits but in physical development and even in adornment. What is the present "style" in young men's clothing if not a parody on sister Jane's outfit?

A sedentary fan is more exhausted after a big game than the famous T. B. M. after lunch. Let him scream and yell and rowdy the umpire as he will, let him get all the vicarious excitement the game affords, yet his muscles still cry for action and his nerves for rest. His muscles, organs and blood retain waste matter which must be oxidized and eliminated. Exercise increases the absorption of oxygen. The sedentary baseball fan attempts to substitute a shot of mere nervous stimulation. The retained poisons or wastes make him nervous and inefficient.

Fanning is a futile effort to substitute an idea for action. Hysteria is the name physicians apply to a condition in which the body is controlled by an idea. One who needs exercise can scarcely get it by reading about it nor by watching it from the grandstand.

Three-old-cat or knock-up-files in a vacant lot if there are not enough fellows on hand for a formal game. But don't indulge in wild orgies of imagination. Don't be hysterical. Play ball!

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

That Same Old Gargle

Some time ago you gave a formula for a gargle to clear the throat for singing or speaking. A friend of mine who sings on the stage declares it is the finest thing she ever found. If you will publish the formula again I am sure many readers will thank you. (Miss L. A.)

ANSWER—Credit from those whom credit is swapped. I found the formula one day while browsing through a tome on therapeutics written by the late Dr. John V. Snowmaker, who accredited it to Mr. J. W. England, one time pharmacist in the Philadelphia Hospital.

Potassium chlorate, 120 grains.

Borling water, 4 ounces.

Powdered alum, 60 grains.

Stronger rose water, 2 ounces and 5 drops.

Glycerin.

Syrup of each, 4 drams.

Fluid extract of red gum

(Eucalyptus Rostrata), 3 drams.

(If red gum not available, substitute 2 drams of fluid extract of kino, which is official in the U. S. P.)

Dissolve the potassium chlorate in the boiling water and set aside to cool.

Dissolve the other ingredients in order in the stronger rose water. Add to reserved portion. A clear ruby liquid of pleasant flavor and odor is the result.

Gargle once or twice thirty or fifteen minutes before using the voice, with one tablespoonful of the liquid mixed with an equal quantity of water.

Tonsils and Appendicitis

Can diseased tonsils be the cause of appendicitis? (Mrs. M. S.)

ANSWER—Yes, a considerable share of cases of acute appendicitis are due to infection reaching the appendix directly from the tonsils. This is fact one reason why appendicitis is most frequent in youth, for it is in youth that the tonsils are most frequently infected.

CONFESSIONS of an EVERY DAY WIFE

BY IDAH M'GLONE GIBSON

THE APPEARANCE OF GUILT

Mrs. Charlton rose abruptly and said, "I think I have made a mistake. I have been taking up your time, while you were probably wondering at my presumption—at the absurdity of my suggestions."

She was very sarcastic and I felt my face flushing—and then flushing more at the realization that my blushes seemed to confirm everything she said.

Major Gordon came into my little sitting room with a more youthful step than I would have thought him capable of. His face was all alight with the anticipation of at last seeing Eliene. At first he did not see Mrs. Charlton, but when he did he realized that Eliene was not there. He stopped abruptly, with such a disappointed air that in other circumstances it would have been funny.

I arose and went forward to meet the Major.

"I am so glad you came," I said. "Mrs. Charlton is just going and you can drive her to her hotel."

I knew the Major was wondering if he would find any more damsels in distress to rescue before he was able to greet his own true love.

"Mrs. Lafferty," he replied, "had a few errands she wished to complete before she returned home and she asked me to drive her about. She is very sad, poor child."

I could not help thinking that Sallie Saunders had been up to her old tricks. While the Major and Mrs. Charlton were talking my thoughts strayed to Sallie Saunders and I begrudgingly gave her a kind of wondering admiration for the way in which she worked the old feminine demand for sympathy and fanned need of protection from the male.

Whatever man may think—and it will probably be a long while before he will come to understand this fact—it is certain that women would make the best diplomats. Man, of course, will say that women's minds will not grasp the big questions; that women deal almost entirely in personal affairs, but given a big thing to accomplish I am sure they could do it—if not as easily—at least with the same definite dispatch that they do their own little affairs.

In reality my brothers wife, Sallie Saunders Lafferty, was not at all sad over his death, now that the disgrace that she married him to escape had passed her by, but she knew that she must simulate this sadness because the world—her little world, expected sadness of her.

How well she was doing this was shown by the intonation of the Major's voice as he spoke of her.

Here was a man who had been much put out by the fact that he had to leave the woman he loved at the very moment he had intended to tell her so and either take a strange lady to her home or suffer the imputation of being very impolite. In spite of that he comes back full of sympathy for the woman and evidently ready to champion her.

I had not been listening very carefully to the conversation between Mrs. Charlton and the Major, but I caught the words that Mrs. was saying: "Yes, I think I will leave here very soon. I am going to try to get across to France. Paris, I believe, is the place where all good people go sooner or later, is it not, Major?"

I heard him answer, "What is the matter with you, Olive? You do not seem like yourself at all."

"Perhaps I shall tell you before I leave," she answered, with a meaningful glance at me.

"Before you leave this house or before you leave town?" he asked stupidly.

"If you take Mrs. Charlton back to her home she will perhaps answer your question on the way," I interposed, notwithstanding that it sounded impolite.

"May I come back to tea, Mrs. Margot?" asked the Major pleadingly but tactlessly.

"If Mrs. Charlton will return with you," I said quickly.

"That will be impossible," she said coldly.

"In that case," I answered lightly, "If Mrs. Charlton turns you out, come back here, you poor wandering creature."

I was playing for time, hoping to hold them both until Eliene made her appearance, because I knew that the moment she appeared her face and that of the Major would tell the tale. However, Mrs. Charlton was in a great hurry to get away.

Her suspicions had been confirmed. She was sure that the Major was in love with me and that I was leading him on purely for own selfish egotistical love of admiration. She barely touched my hand as she bade me good bye and her expression grew hard as the Major said, "I'll be back for that cup of tea you will keep it for me even if it is late?"

"Surely I will," I answered, you might persuade Mrs. Charlton come with you," I rejoined.

Mrs. Charlton unfortunately caught the look he gave which as plainly as though he had said, "When I come I shall be alone (Tomorrow—Eliene's Philoof Love.)"

JORDAN

People Demand Light Weight

Thousands of owners now know that Jordan cars possess that peculiar quality of balance which cannot be attained in cars weighing from twelve to fifteen hundred pounds more—nor in extremely light cars of short wheel base.

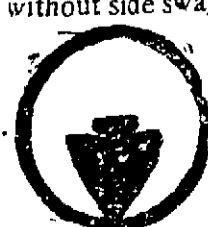

People demand light weight—but not too light. There must be no ruinous side sway—no jerky up and down vibration.

The new Jordan Silhouette is the lightest car on the road for its wheel base—but perfectly balanced—accurately suspended. Its whole tendency is toward forward movement without side sway.

Many a man who felt it necessary to pay a high price and get a heavy car in order to attain reliability has chosen the Jordan because it combined quality with light weight and perfect balance.

The body is all-aluminum. Smart French angle at dash. Perfectly flat top-edge—without a trace of bevel. Gun metal instrument board. Artistic hardware. Innovation in tonneau equipment. Tailored top. Character in every detail.

The Silhouette finished in Brewster Green or Burgundy Old Wine is built in both four and seven passenger capacities.

Make Real Beer at Home

LIKE EVERYBODY DOES IN "DRY" TERRITORY NOW

GET THE HABIT

Some people were fortunate enough to stock their basement with beer before May 27th and enjoy it during the hot days. Some were still more fortunate yet and got BLUE RIBBON MALT EXTRACT and made their own delicious beer at a cost of 3c per bottle and are doing it right along. No other extract will suit them but BLUE RIBBON MALT EXTRACT. To those unfortunate dry people who haven't either one of the two, we extend a hearty invitation to our store. Let us tell you all about it and convince you, like the rest. Satisfied customers are our biggest asset. Remember that this will make a "REAL BEER," with all the kick in it, and not a so called "NEAR BEER." One package of BLUE RIBBON MALT EXTRACT with hops will make between 45 and 50 bottles of beer and it sells for only $1.50. Send draft, Post Office or Express money order.

Quality counts. Cheap imitations of Malt Extract are only dear in the end.

For the convenience of our customers we are also carrying at a very nominal cost a supply of crown caps and cappers for bottling purposes.

THE Buick Valve-in-Head motor is, first of all, a clean-cut motor. It acts cleanly, it concentrates, it becomes more efficient—because the cylinders of this motor are true cylinders—they have no side-pockets, no by-ways through which to lose power.

The full force of the explosion acts on the piston-head, where it conserves power. After each piston stroke the cylinders clear themselves of dead gas, so that they are filled with all fresh gas for each succeeding explosion.

The Shimmer of Chiffon

Gowns Befitting "Summer Nights and Moon Magic," Illustrating Artistic Use of Various Accessories.

By Mme. Frances
The Famous Creator of Fashions

SUMMER nights and moon magic call for evening gowns soft as cobwebs, whose filmy draperies sway in the lightest breeze. The fabric above all others for such a setting is chiffon. It may be called Georgette crepe or crepe chiffon, but fundamentally it is the same exquisite material that drapes in perfect lines.

Chiffon may be combined with lace or it may be trimmed with beads and embroidery, but the transparent loveliness of the fabric remains always an inspiration to the creator of women's gowns.

Chiffon is used in both light and dark colors for dinner dresses. I am featuring a shade of peony chiffon that is very striking. It is deeper than American Beauty, carrying a trace of purple in the dye which makes the color identical with the petals of the flower from which it takes its name. Petunia is a trifle deeper in tone than peony. This color is also lovely in chiffon. There is a new green which is wonderfully radiant. It is like the heart of an emerald with a dash of blue which makes it paler than emerald green.

Among the darker shades, bronze is very popular for dinner frocks largely because this shade is so becoming to the brunette and auburn haired woman. Bronze "lifts the lights," as an artist would say, and is especially good on a fair-haired girl. All the shades of marigolds and nasturtiums are used in a brilliant glow of contrast in every range of yellow, orange and brown from palest canary to burnt sienna.

Black comes in for a share of popularity, though black chiffon unless combined with net is apt to look a bit old or suggest mourning. Black net makes a better summer evening gown than chiffon, if this color is desired.

Of the lighter shades pink is the favorite. This color is so exquisitely femine, so generally becoming that it is difficult to make a mistake in choosing pink. Twilight, candle light or electric light—it doesn't matter—pink is always pretty and it is the complexion color for most women.

Rose, of course, is another complexion color, but rose is more trying, especially for the older women, because it is rather conspicuous. And yet I saw Ellen Terry in the most wonderfully graceful gown of this color. It was during her last visit to America. Her hair was gray and her figure not exactly girlish, but clad in a gown of rose minus all trimming she looked like a wonderful painting.

By all means wear rose if it is becoming to you, but do not "bedizen" it with silver and gold unless you are very young and wish to wear it as a dance frock.

All shades of orchid are exquisite. This color is never more lovely than in chiffon and combines exquisitely with pink. It is especially good when worn with a wide pink Neapolitan hat, wreathed with hydrangeas.

All the hydrangea tones are popular in millinery and the long, uncured orchid plumes that shade from pink to blue or from pink to lavender are lovely on the pastel horsehair hats.

An exquisite dinner gown that combines pale orchid chiffon with lace is shown on the model wearing the picture hat. The blouse is a graceful affair of orchid chiffon. It is cut on generous kimono lines and hangs in graceful folds. A little double ruffle of orchid chiffon appears below the girdle on one side. This girdle is a rare bit of color. One line is pale rose, another violet, and the lower Nile green charmeuse, hemstitched together with gilt thread.

The skirt of this wonderfully beautiful model is cream lace, draped in lines of unusual loveliness. This lace skirt falls over a petticoat of cream charmeuse which preserves the ivory tones of the lace. A scarf of orchid chiffon is attached at the side back and falls to train length.

The hat worn with this costume is very becoming. A broad, flat shape of pink Neapolitan is ruffled with cream lace. A narrow black gros-grain ribbon passes around the front of the crown and ties in a bow at the tip of the brim, where the ends "fall off" and run into long streamers that trail with tantalizing coquetry behind the pretty wearer of this frock, which is one of the most picturesque models of the season.

A dress which is in brilliant contrast to the girlish loveliness of the lace model is the gown of silver lace. This lace is nearer steel than silver. The fabric is the most wonderful piece of metallic lace that I have ever been able to procure. Tarnished silver is wrought in the most unusual pattern and woven into a texture as softly graceful as chiffon, and to add lustre to the lily it is embroidered in beads which pick out the pattern of the lace.

The fabric of this gown is so unusual and elaborate that it requires little trimming, save that which would give to it a dash of brilliant color. This is supplied by the girdle of cerise charmeuse. The long ends that form the double train are of the same material, weighted with silver bullion fringe.

The sleeves of this gown are long and give another chance for color in lines of lemon yellow and vivid green, which run in bands above the wrists.

It is difficult to convey the gorgeous beauty of this gown in a black and white drawing; nor can words convey the loveliness of its color and the barbaric splendor of its fabric.

A gown which may be called picturesque is illustrated in the model of black charmeuse with the Grecian over-drapery of net. A high girdle of black charmeuse spans the figure with princess closeness. Above this girdle runs a line of black lace, just a finish to relieve the sharp line of black against the skin which gleams through the net drapery. The skirt of black charmeuse is draped in lovely lines whose bias is accented by bands of jet and green brocade, embroidered with emerald beads. Two long tabs are weighted with Chinese tassels of jet and emeralds. The picture part of this gown is the classic drapery of net which is outlined with a band of jet embroidery.

Now for the girlish frock of bronze chiffon. There is an underdress of bronze charmeuse. A band of dull gold ribbon runs around the bust line. Over this charmeuse slip is laid the simple waist of thinnest crepe chiffon. The round, flat collar is outlined with bronze beads to match the short sleeve finish. The skirt is very full and is ruffled to near-hoop proportions with row after row of chiffon. The dashing part of this gown is the wonderful girdle and sash of bronze and gold brocade. The entire costume is brought into the limelight by this sash which gleams and glistens like a thousand prisms of light.

The Fashion Forecast

Gray linen will be very much worn for smart morning frocks and tailored suits. Worn with gray accessories or with a blue or rose hat and parasol, this color is very striking.

HER BLIMP NOSE, REBUILT AT $50, STIRS ONLY WOE

"Give Me One Like Ma's or My Old One Back," Wails Girl

CHICAGO.—Nature, in fabricating the physiognomic architecture, frequently moves in mysterious ways her wonders to perform, particularly as concerns that dominant and central bas-relief, commonly called the nose.

This well known organ, in addition to its utilitarian and polychromatic aspects, may be a thing of beauty and a joy forever to your esthetic connoisseur and artist, or, as Miss Tracy Sambroske had often observed in consultation with her mirror, it may be a veritable fardel of woe, an anatomical old man of the sea.

Her Bridge of Sighs.

She would not have demurred at a snub nose, or, say, a straight front effect, or even the promontory type affected by the oval-faced ladies of Raphael, but a nose with a blimp hump like unto the hook of Bo-peep's staff—well, her olfactory melancholy was so chronic one might well have termed the nose her bridge of sighs.

"I want it remodeled," said Miss Sambroske to E. L. Hunkerfer, beauty specialist in the offices of Dr. Herbert F. Lampkin, 6 West Randolph street. "The specialist appraised it with practiced eye and—

"Yet, it needs remodeling. The Hogarthian line of beauty is entirely lacking. They're not wearing them like that this year."

So he called in Dr. Lampkin and they rebuilt Miss Sambroske's nose along the 1919 symmetrical, sinuous, synchronizing lines, neatly beveling the abrupt convexities. Failed

PREACHES FIRST SERMON FROM AIR AT CAPITAL

COLUMBUS.—Dr. Edmund B. Soper, Madison, N. J., Friday preached the first sermon from the air, at the Methodist centenary exposition. Rev. Soper spoke from the United States army dirigible A-4 as it hovered above the thousands in the exposition grounds. He used a megaphone.

Rev. Soper said:

"The experience of being up in a balloon reminds me of the experience of Jesus when he was taken to the Pinnacle of the temple and was tempted to throw himself down to the ground below.

"He was tempted to do a daring and dangerous thing just to arouse the people. He refused to do it.

"But Jesus did just as daring a thing as that when he allowed his life to be snuffed out at the crucifixion. It was the boldest act of daring faith the world has ever seen.

"There are times with us when 'safety first' is the rule to apply—when prudence should control. But when a country is at war, prudential considerations are forgotten and we are willing to encounter any dan-

Penney, a native of the state of Missouri, having gone west in search of health and more remunerative occupation and having entered into several business enterprises which proved failures in 1902 was placed in charge of a small store in Kemmerer, Wyoming, called the Golden Rule Store. This is a small town in the coal mining district and depending altogether on the miners for support. The building, yet standing, is a small frame structure with living apartments upstairs which Mr. Penney and family occupied. Many predicted his failure as a cash and carry store, saying it could not be done. We will not go into details of the early struggle for success, suffice to say he did succeed and well. The store under his management, his just and fair treatment to all, the high standard of the merchandise handled, soon became the talk of the town and not long afterwards it was decided to open a new store in a nearby town. This was done, the seed had borne fruit, it prospered and was able to branch out and thus in seventeen short years has grown from such a small beginning (as most great enterprises do) the present great chain of department stores now numbering one hundred and ninety-seven stores, doing business in twenty-five states and recognized as the largest chain of department stores in America. The store in Kemmerer still stands (we have never moved from a town once we establish a store) the first year's business there was $29,000, while the last year (1918) our organization did more than TWENTY-ONE MILLIONS.

We ask you "Could this growth have been possible had our methods been other than correct?" We answer "No." While we do not criticize any system we doubt if you could name any business under any other system which has made such rapid strides of progress. The policy of the founder has never been altered or changed; courtesy, fair and just treatment to all alike, dependable merchandise at the lowest price made possible by the no-loss-by-credit idea, no bookkeepers, etc., by direct eliminating the high salaried road salesmen, etc. These things, together with careful management and good business judgment have brought us to our present position in the mercantile world. Our main office is located in New York city where a corps of expert buyers are always on the markets contracting for dependable merchandise at prices that mean a saving of real merit to the consumer. We buy no seconds or shoddy goods, and as our past year in Lima has been successful we look forward to the coming years as those which will bring you as patrons and we as servants into a closer co-operation which will result in greater efficiency for use and a better understanding of the true value and service of our organization to you as a consumer.

Very truly yours,

When a Girl Marries

By ANN LISLE

Copyright 1919, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Promptly at six I arrived at the Walgrave. No Jim. He hadn't come by quarter past either, and I reflected with what I tried to make good natured detachment, that he had never—during all the months of our marriage—been late. But by six-thirty I was neither "detached" nor exactly good natured. Then, just as I was trying to decide whether I'd better get a boy to page him, or phone the office to see if anything

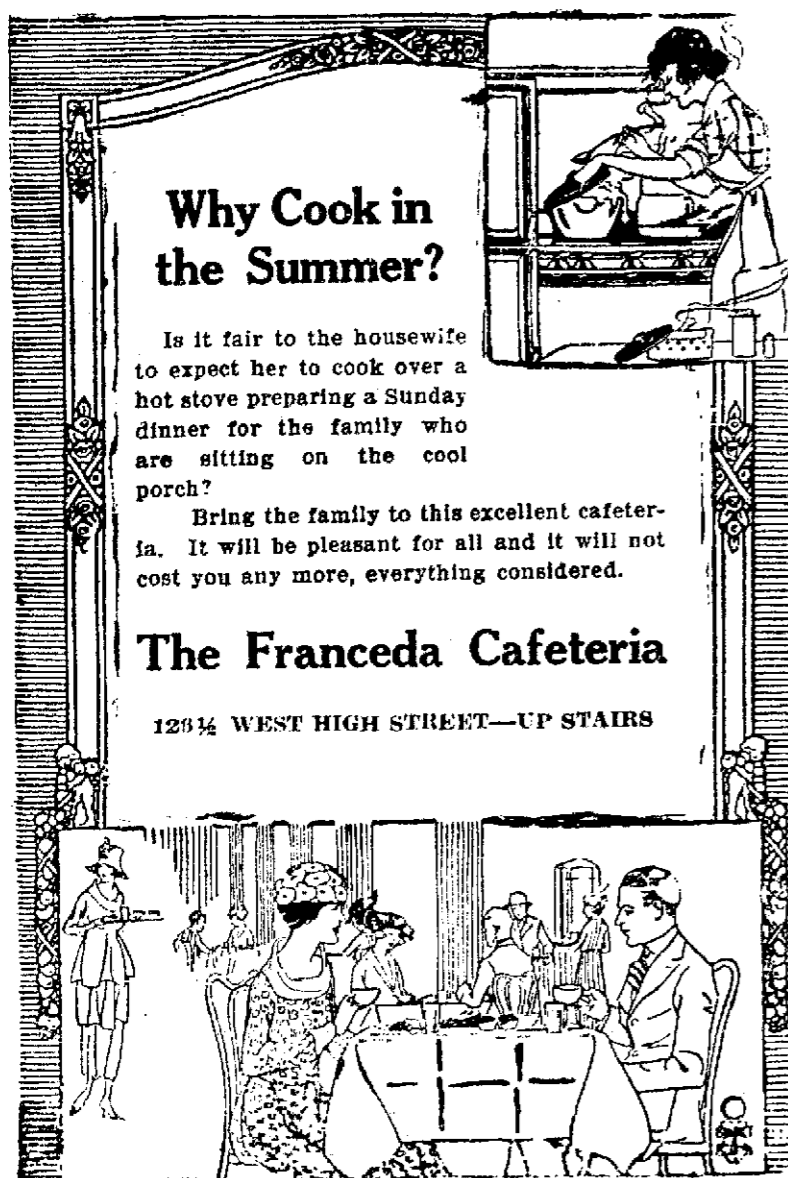

Why Cook in the Summer?

Is it fair to the housewife to expect her to cook over a hot stove preparing a Sunday dinner for the family who are sitting on the cool porch?

Bring the family to this excellent cafeteria. It will be pleasant for all and it will not cost you any more, everything considered.

me up any longer. I've a taxi waiting." Then as I jumped up quickly, a saturnal smile greeted me, "I thought that would start you off, you frugal soul, you! Anne, I'll have to teach you to take luxury as gracefully as you faced poverty."

"If that's a compliment, I'll make the best of it," I replied, swallowing my chagrin in amused realization that if Jim hadn't beaten me to it, I would have acted like the accused member of our party.

We drove at once to the fashionable thoroughfare where Jim had found the apartment that suited him so well. There was a magnificent stone-pillared entrance hall with a Chinese rug worth a king's ransom on the floor, and Italian American lamps with translucent glass shades. Cold, expensive, impressive—this was the feeling I got from the entrance hall, and neither the liveried, soft-footed attendants nor the tiny, caged entry where the elevator bore us, abated one jot of my feeling of being an intruder and unwelcome withal.

Jim wielded a key with an air of possession, and admitted us to a conventional city apartment.

Big living-room and dining-room darting off from the reception hall at right angles, while a door next the dining-room entrance undoubtedly led to the sleeping rooms and baths. Virginia's apartment was similar to that, so was Betty's. I couldn't imagine this place ever seeming distinctly and exclusively mine.

"Plenty of windows for light and air, and—look at the view!" said Jim with the proud air of a showman, leading me to the great triple windows of the living-room.

"Oh, Jim—it's so high!" You can look out over everything. It frightens me. Suppose there was a fire?" I cried disjunctly.

"You'd go over the roofs," replied Jim, too absorbed in his own attitude to react to mine.

"Have you—signed the lease?" I asked.

"Here it is. Want to have a look? Two years, with the privilege of five."

I ran my eyes over the long, double-leaved document Jim presented, but I didn't get much beyond the figures.

"But, Jim—how can you pay such an enormous rent? Why, we've lived on less a month than you're—"

Furiously Jim snatched the lease from me, folded it and returned it to his wallet. He didn't actually break in on what I was saying, but I didn't dare go on. After a moment, during which he seemed to be struggling for self-control, he spoke:

"Now listen to me, Anne, and abide by what I'm saying. Once for all I want you to understand that I'm going to the top. I'm playing a dangerous game, playing with big men. But I'm going to win—to be one of them. They aren't pikers—I don't dare to be. Put up a front that's the way this game is played."

"You mean we're going into debt? That we're going to live beyond our means?" I asked.

"I mean I'm going to figure out what my means will be a year from now and live up to 'em. What do you say to that—you little miser?"

Even the softening "little" didn't make me oblivious to the fact that Jim intended to insult me. But I passed it over, for I felt I was fighting for our very existence.

"Jim I know what it is to be always in debt. When I was a child my father gambled, you know. Red velvet hotel suites—parallel to this, one month. Slums the next."

"Your faith in me is touching, Anne. I suppose you think the parallel is obvious."

Jim's voice was like a whip-lash, but before I could reply there came three signalling taps on the bell, and Jim—with clearing brow and warning whisper to me—opened the door to admit a giant of a man.

After a word of greeting he presented Mr. Cosby, and my hand was engulfed in a sturdy paw that matched the big brown-and-tan man with net-worked skin and peering eyes, who appraised me and the place quickly in a hearty:

"Bumper crop!"

Mr. Cosby and I were shown around my home together. He approved. As we were leaving, he said to Jim:

"Who's going to do your decorating?"

Jim hesitated a moment; then he said, in a tone that conveyed his intention all along to employ a decorator:

"Oh, my friend Tom Mason, of course."

Not even the new extravagance startled me so much as the new phase of intimacy that I saw, approaching.

TWO PAIRS TWINS MAKE BIG LOT OF WORK FOR MOTHER

THEY CAUSED MRS. DAVID HARRIS TO BE ALL RUN DOWN TILL NERV-WORTH CAME TO THE RESCUE

A royal friend of overworked women is this famous family tonic. One of the very strongest proofs of its wonderful merits in the following statements made to the Nerv-Worth druggist at New Castle, Pa.

New Castle Pharmacy—My wife has suffered from nervous trouble for four years. Could not sleep and get any rest. Was all run down from looking after my twin boys, four years old, and another pair of twins, nine months old. She doctored a great deal but got no relief. Through a friend she was advised to take Nerv-Worth. I purchased a bottle and she at once began to improve.

And now, after taking the second bottle she has lost all nervousness and is rapidly gaining in weight and strength. We surely recommend Nerv-Worth as it has been a blessing to us.

Makes Wrinkles Go "As If By Magic"

Want to banish every wrinkle—from face, neck, hands—easily, quickly, completely? Try the famous exfolite formula. Nothing else so nearly meets every requirement. Why? Because it is correct in principle and really, truly assists Nature. Possessing remarkable astringent and tonic properties, it both tightens the skin—thus naturally smoothing out the lines—and improves capillary circulation and nerve tone—tending to strengthen loose tissue and bring about a healthy condition. Yet, powerful as the exfolite lotion is, it won't harm your skin in the least. And it's so easy to get the inexpensive ingredients at your druggist's, and so easy to mix them. Just dissolve one ounce powdered exfolite in one-half pint witch hazel—that's all. Bathe your face in this—immediately every wrinkle and crease are affected, even the deepest. You are perfectly astonished, and delighted, with the result. You look like you've lost years from your age!

Everyone IS INTERESTED IN My System of Spinal Adjustments which is obtaining Relief and Health for hundreds in the City of Lima whose cases had been pronounced incurable.

READ THIS

The new science of Life is to get at the CAUSE of Things. Humanity has been dying from treatment of Effects ever since Adam fell for the later doctrine and ate that apple. Had Adam built a fence and then picked up a stick from the ground and knocked that old apple off its tree into the next yard, future generations would have had a better show with life. As a Chiropactor I am looking for the CAUSE of physical ailments and endeavor to rectify the troubles that interfere with the natural flow of life's force, such as the pressure on nerves that are caused by a spinal displacement.

By scientifically adjusting the displaced spinal segments (vertebrae) the spine is restored to normal position and the pressure on the nerves is removed. The result is that the body and mind immediately proceed to function in an entirely normal manner with the whole human system restored to HEALTH.

Independence Day

THE tin soldiers have formed a volunteer guard to stand on all the street—pshaw! I mean chair—corners in Nurseryville to keep the dummies and animals from using firecrackers. They're so dangerous! And the little Red Cross nurses have opened up a temporary hospital in the circus tent to treat bumps and bruises and breaks.

There's to be a circus parade and a tin soldier parade, a ride in a captive balloon and a sail on Bathub sea. Then lemonade and cookies will be served in the cozy corner by the bookcase, and perhaps there'll be a candy pull afterward. Captain True Blue, a gallant wooden soldier with but one leg, will speak on patriotism, and Ted E. Bear will sing the national air.

I think they are going to have a wonderful time and I hope I'll be there, don't you?

A Society for Dolls

Yes, indeed! Of course, they have! Each dolly who belong wears a bracelet and promises to do something to help some one each day. Rings make lovely bracelets for small dolls and the S. S. of D. is becoming very popular among the dolls and animals.

Dr. Dollby

Warns all little dolls and their mothers that burns from firecrackers should be taken to a doctor right away. Don't wait, even if it is only a tiny, tiny burn. He is prepared to treat all dummies and animals, though he hopes they'll be sensible enough not to use firecrackers.

Millinery

Large, floppy straw hats are to be worn by well dressed dollies. They are of a rough straw, with bright flowers around the crown.

Footwear for Dolls

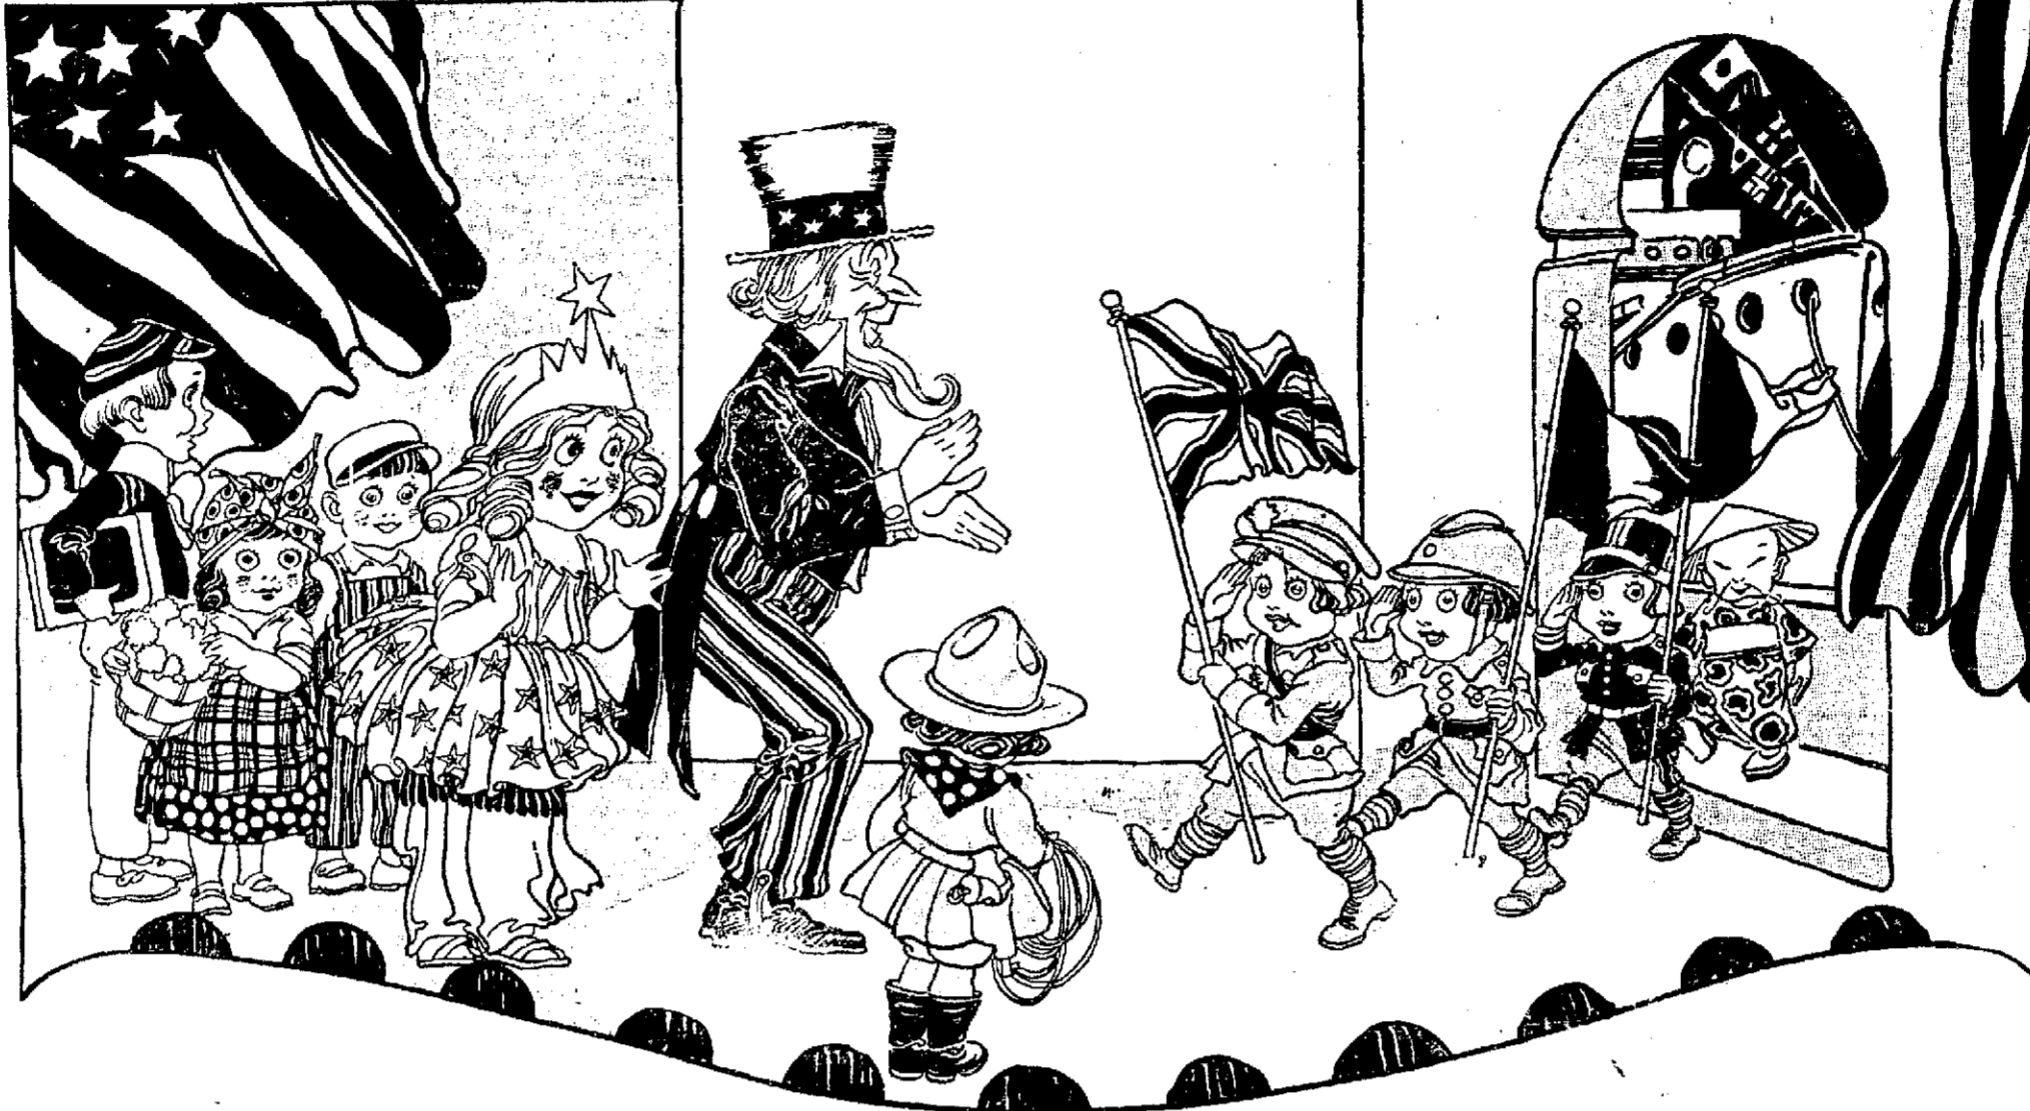

Sandals are very popular at the seashore. They are easily made by tracing the dolly's foot on stiff paper for a sole. This can be fastened on by ribbons, or you can make the sole and regular sandal top of an old kid glove, and sew them together. Silk socks can be made from old silk gloves, and the daintiest underwear from the legs of old silk stockings. Even bathing suits can be made this way.

Salute to Old Glory

There isn't a flag
That is finer.
There isn't a land
That's so free.
I'm proud of my flag
And my country,
And may it be Proud of me!

HERE is a thought for the Fourth of July. Fireworks were invented thousands of years ago by the Chinese, and no nation has been able to equal their display of rockets, star showers and other beautiful fireworks for night-time festivals.

Uncle Sam's Birthday : A Patriotic Play for the Fourth of July

THE costumes of Uncle Sam and Miss Columbia need no explanation. East, West, North and South should be dressed to represent the eastern, western, northern and southern states. They might be boys in uniform with white straps containing East, West, etc., lettered on them, or South might be a young girl in white with cotton in her hair and tufted over her dress. North might be dressed to represent the industries. East as a student, and West as a cowgirl or wood nymph with poppies twined round her head.

England might be represented by the typical figure of John Bull. France by a tall girl in white with lilies, and the other nations in national costumes. China, being such an old, old country, should be represented by an old man rather than a girl.

Uncle Sam, seated in a big chair, reading the paper, center of stage—or if outdoors, and that is always preferable, center of space to be used.

Uncle Sam (murmuring to himself)—Well, well, WELL, sir! Can it be? That I'm a hundred forty-three!

I must be, for it says so here
My forty-four and hundredth year!
Miss Columbia runs in—Happy birthday, Uncle Sam!

Uncle Sam—The same to you, pshaw! I mean thank you. And how do I look for so old a chap?

Miss Columbia—Never better; you look your best, tall and straight and broad of chest. Uncle Sam—That, my dear, needs no explaining. 'Twas the military training!

Columbia (clapping her hands)—Yes, that's what makes you spruce and snappy. But, Uncle Sam, you look so happy! Uncle Sam jumps up and walks to and fro excitedly—

This is the proudest and happiest day in all of my life—for it sees fair play win in the world and America's youth have battled and triumphed for right and truth.

For no reward—nor gains—nor dole
But that Liberty's bell for the world might toll!
East, West, North and South rush in, petting Uncle Sam with flowers—Many happy returns of the day, Uncle Sam—do you hear the bells and shouts of the people and the singing? (Noises off stage.)

Seize hands with Columbia and circle around Uncle Sam, singing one of the popular patriotic songs. South steps forward, pulling the North after her—Over there we've pal'd together. And we'll never quarrel more, For we've learned to know each other In this great and epic war!

West and East, North and South take hands— Uncle Sam we're right behind you Each one wears the eagle's feather— "All for one—and one for all!" And our motto, "Stand together!" Uncle Sam—Hear! Hear!

From without sounds a medley of national airs and in rush all the nations waving their flags and leading Uncle Sam with gifts.

Cries of "Surprise! Surprise! Happy birthday!" If there is time here, dancing always makes a play more interesting, and all of the nations together might go through a pretty and graceful figure.

Uncle Sam steps forward—Why, this is good of you to remember an old man on his birthday! China chuckles to himself and mutters aloud—

Old! We count 3000 years as young. What infants I do find myself among! Uncle Sam—Where's Russia? Poland, sympathetically—She's not feeling very well—but she'll be here next year.

France addresses Uncle Sam—No longer as friends—but as brothers—we share in a glorious liberty— Our birthday is yours and your birthday ours— Your name's in our hearts and your flag on our towers! Uncle Sam bows, too affected for speech. England steps out— Comrade in arms—for peace and the right— Son—let's forget all our differences and spite

And shoulder to shoulder stand by as we've done In this war that we've fought side by side and we've won! Uncle Sam—Here's my hand on it, John! Powers applaud.

Italy—I'm proud that it was one of my countrymen who discovered America, and to America we have always and will always be bound by the strongest ties of affection!

Ireland steps out with a flourish—This is getting too solemn, so I'll dance you a bit of a jig for a present; and in every step's a bit of love for you. Mind that, Uncle Sam!

Dances. Great clapping, which subsides as Belgium comes forward— For your bounty and your care, For your help in our despair, For your sacrifice we give Our love—to last while ages live!

Uncle Sam—I did very little! Other nations step forward together— Our love, too, Uncle Sam, and best wishes. Miss Columbia appears with a big cake, many candles burning on it; sets it on table, which has been placed in center. Who'll have a piece—it's very good— A birthday cake of Brotherhood!

With candles of liberty already lighted! England—We'll all have some! France—Be delighted! All gather around table and Uncle Sam steps forward to cut cake—pauses. This is the most wonderful birthday I have ever had! "Star-Spangled Banner." Miss Columbia unfurls a big flag and all nations stand at attention. Curtain.

A Really Remarkable Yarn!
THE stockinet doll was a well-knit fellow Of green and purple mixed with yellow. Contented he lived and happily Till the knitting craze struck the nursery.

The dolls hearing nothing but RED CROSS WORK Resolve no longer their share to shirk. Socks they WILL knit for the soldier's WOOL They simply must have—"Just let us pull

A bit from your arm, 'twill do no harm." The stockinet doll hears with alarm Their stern demands, when he refuses, They heap him with scorn and shrill abuses.

Not fitting in with their plans despotic He's dubbed by them "UNPATRIOTIC!" If he goes to sleep they slyly pull Yards from his person, till loss of wool!

Makes him so weak he can scarcely speak, "Another family I'll have to seek." He sadly confides to the Teddy Bear, Who kindly assists in his repair.

And that is all, for one dark night He dropped out the window, I think he was right. And I hope that now he's happily fitting In some doll family opposed to knitting.

Shank's Mare

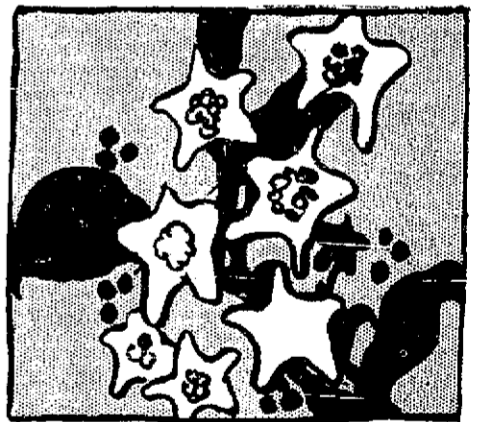

DID you ever hear of that wonderful mare? Of that marvelous mare of Shank's— That carries its master everywhere, Up hills, down vales and banks? It doesn't neigh nor call for hay, It doesn't toss its mane; But they do say it trots all day And off at night again! I've often heard my daddy tell ' Somebody he'd he there If all was right and all was well, And he'd come by Shank's old mare. And when I asked him what it was, He said 'twas the steed of the poor; But I would like to see it once. You know, then I'd be sure.

Uses of Sea Weeds

A GOOD many of us think of sea weeds as perfectly useless ocean growths, somewhat like our garden weeds. As a matter of fact, sea weeds have many, many uses. They furnish food for the fish, the same as grass and herbage do for our cattle and sheep. And many of the smaller fish build their homes—almost like our birds—in the floating island of sea weed. They also keep the water pure.

Sea weed of a certain kind used to be much in demand, as it contained an alkali used in the manufacture of soap, but this is now obtained from other sources. Sea weeds are used by farmers along the coast for fertilizer, and in the fall it is interesting to see them gathering it, often driving their teams far out into the water, the horses plugging back with a load of the glistening stuff. If you have been in New England you have probably noticed this yourself.

Some of the hardy cattle of Ireland and Scotland thrive on dried sea weed as a winter fodder. There is a species of sea weed that grows along the coast of Japan from which glue is made, and the Chinese use sea weed to glaze their umbrellas, lanterns and screens.

Well-Known Wills—Sweet William

SWEET WILLIAM is a flower lad, So very spick and spanly. The little flower lassies think Him quite a flower dandy.

A Little About Captain Kidd

THIS redoubtable gentleman was a real person, contrary to many folks' impressions. "Toward the end of the seventeenth century," says an old sea book, "Captain Kidd was fitted out at private expense, and armed with King William's commission for seizing pirates!" So he started out to catch pirates—and then, instead, turned into the very worst kind of a buccaneer himself. The whole eastern coast of the United States has been scoured for traces of his buried treasure. I have even done a little digging myself. In 1701 the pirate captain was brought to England, tried and executed.

A Little Story About Some Little People

MR. AND MRS. JOHNNY SHORT NOSE were out for the day. They had tacked up a sign on their front door "Will return at 8 o'clock," turned the key in the lock and gone off to enjoy the sights. For, as Mr. Johnny well knew, sights there would be, for wasn't it the Fourth of July?

Mrs. Johnny held fast to her husband's arm, for she was a timid little mouse lady and after they had witnessed the toy soldier parade in the nursery begged her husband to return home.

"No, indeed!" squeaked Mr. Johnny Short Nose, "we're going out into the real street and watch these curious two-legged giants celebrate. They always have a lot of cakes and candy in their pockets, and there'll be no end of crumbs." This cheered Mrs. Johnny up a bit, but she still felt nervous. They waited in the vestibule of the house where they lived till a little boy opened the door, then out they scurried just in time to see a sure enough giant parade. They sat on the curb and cheered and cheered, but nobody heard them, the band was making such a noise. Then a really terrible thing happened.

The little boy, whose daddy I am sorry to say did not believe in a safe and sane Fourth, threw a whole pack of firecrackers into the street. They exploded right back of Mr. and Mrs. Short Nose, and the little couple rose straight in the air and then fell into the gutter from the shock. Fortunately the only casualties were to

Mr. Johnny's whiskers, which were singed, and Mrs. Johnny's nerves, which were ruined. But after her husband had dusted her off with a maple leaf the little lady consented to cross the street and see what was going on in the square. Holding fast to one another they rushed across, and were soon mingling with the crowds. That's what Mr. Johnny called it, but they were so tiny that no one noticed them except a rude toad, which winked its eye and giggled at Mr. Johnny's singed whiskers.

For a time they were content to sit in the grass and listen to a speech a very red-faced giant was making, but there were a number of cake stands and tables where lemonade was being served, and already the crumbs were beginning to fall about. Under the largest table, where it was shady and comfortable, they had a regular picnic, and after they had eaten as much as they could, Mrs. Johnny began putting the cake crumbs that were still about in her string bag. Of course, they fell through until Mr. Johnny thought to line it with paper. Then the little lady went sound asleep, first telling Mr. Johnny not to stir till she awakened.

Mr. Johnny stood it as long as he could, but being an adventurous spirit he decided to do a very risky thing. No less, my dears, than to climb the table leg and peek out at the people who were regaling themselves with lemonade. He reached the top safely and peeked over. The most delicious lemon peel lay almost within reach. Mr. Johnny was dreadfully fond of lemon peel, so he gave a little grab toward it, lost his balance and fell, not on the ground—that would have been bad enough—but spill-ash! into a bucket of lemonade that stood beside the table.

"What was that?" asked the man at the table looking down. But nobody else heard, that is, not until Mrs. Johnny awakened, and by that time the little mouse was covered with frost; yes, really!

You see, he went down, down, down to the bottom of the bucket, and then he rose, but not to the top, for the lemonade was half gone. Sputtering and choking, and so much lemonade all at once, as far from pleasant let me tell you. He clambered out on a big iceberg. It was an iceberg to him. And there he shivered and shook, and called for help till, as I have said, Mrs. Johnny awakened. Following the sound of his voice she climbed the side of the bucket and almost fell backward from shock when she saw her poor, frost-bitten husband clinging to the ice. Quickly recovering herself she tore her skirt into strips, tied them together and lowered this improvised rope to Mr. Johnny. It was hard work pulling him up, but she tugged and tugged, and at last he reached the top and then they both tumbled over the edge of the bucket onto the grass completely exhausted. And the people went on drinking the lemonade just as if a mouse had not nearly drowned under their very noses, but Mr. and Mrs. Johnny went home, for they had had enough excitement for one day.

The Forgetful Poet

WISHES you a snappy Fourth and all that sort of thing. He seems still to be interested in boats. See how many of these you can find.

ALL THE BOATS AFLOAT! The sailboats are a motley group, And first among them is the —. Oh! there are more than one can utter. Another odd one is the —. And then the fisherman's stand pat boat, The useful, little lively — boat.

'Mong other craft there are a lot, We'll not forget the sporting —. Comuter folk are bound to hurry If they would catch the churning —. The Arab man sails in his —. And that's about enough for now.

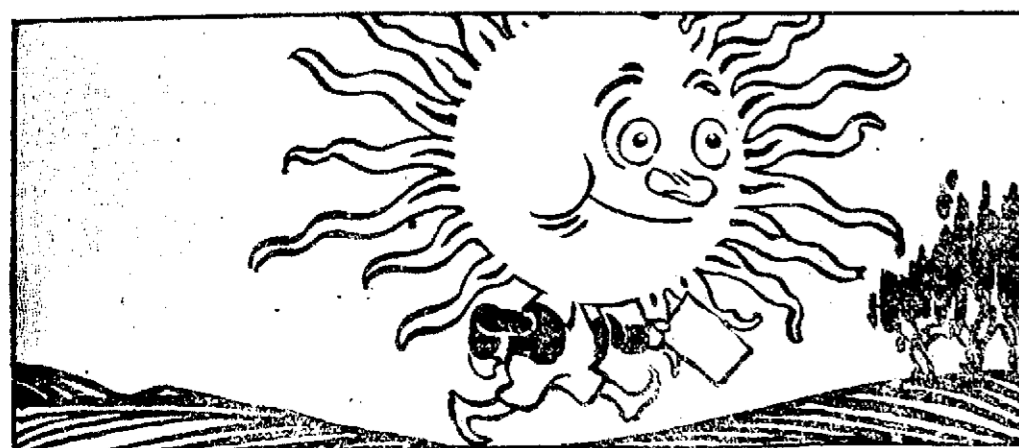

The boats that came to dock in last week's puzzles were junk, fishing smack, barge, ocean liner, dory and raft.

Smile and Smile

THE lights shine twice on a rainy night Above—and again below On the pavements wet, their reflections bright, Reassuring and cheerful glow.

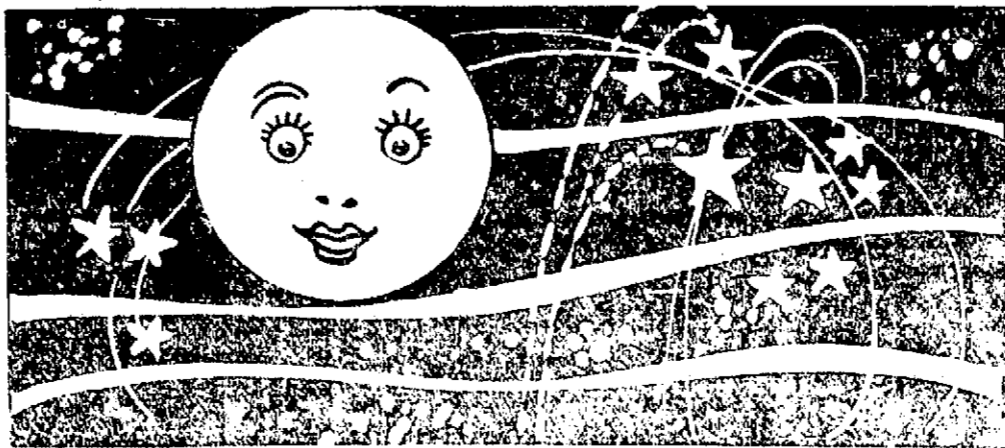

And smiles shine twice on the rainy nights Of sorrow and grief and pain To reflect in the heart as the cheerful lights That glow in the dismal rain.

lurer to Escape the Harrowing Scenes of Their Devastated Countries and Mingle Again With Their Kin, Many Erstwhile Rulers Flee Across the Continent to a Refuge in the British Isles

INTO the ancient volume of England's history fate has from time to time inserted a page bright with the golden scrolls of sheer romance. Such a page lies open now, a page gleaming with so much of splendor and tragedy that in appeal to the imagination and the heart it must outshine the rest. It is a page across which as in a pageant moves the stately processional of empires pacing to their fall, gem-laden, aflame to the sparkle of swords and dinged by six of the loveliest women

SIX Queens gathered on one small island. This is the first incredible fact that makes the page resplendent. Not in the days when bluff King Hal held lavish rule, in those days which saw the Field of the Cloth of Gold, nor in the royal days of Elizabeth, were six queens housed at once in England. Through all the swashbuckling decades of adventure and exploration and conquest no such miracle became manifest. It remained for the materialistic, money-ridden, Bolshevik-bitten year 1919 to create the most romantic situation that royalty has ever known.

Within an island only a trifle larger than Kansas there are Queen Mary of England, Queen Marie of Rumania, Dowager Queen Alexandra of England, Dowager Queen Amelie of Portugal, Dowager Empress Marie of Russia, and ex-Empress Eugenie of the French. Despite their own security and the stability of the British throne, both Queen Mary and the Dowager Queen Alexandra are filled with grief at the disasters heaped upon their sister sovereigns. As for Marie of Rumania, her visit may become permanent also unless her country's affairs improve.

There exists more than a political or a broadly human reason why the present Queen of England and the widowed queen of King Edward should sympathize with the misfortunes of the unhappy royal women. Internationalism has woven the reigning European houses together so closely that the English queen and dowager queen are related to most of the other rulers and princesses. Marie of Rumania is an English princess, born in England. Marie of Russia is the sister of Dowager Queen Alexandra. Anne of Portugal comes from the pretender branch of the French Orleans. Eugene, descended from a taven keeper's daughter, is related through her father to one of the oldest houses of Spain and through her mother to both Scotch and Irish families of fair pretensions.

Not is it merely by family ties, close or remote, that the six queens are drawn together. Each and all they have achieved unusual careers, brief for a queen in its superlative. To be a queen is in itself an event. For each of these six queens it has been an adventure. Among them they have known absolute power, utter humiliation; limitless wealth, actual poverty; the summit of popularity, the pit of execration. All of them laid slender and capable hands on the reins of government. Each at times helped twist the history of nations to suit her caprice or her conviction. Not one but has been seared by tragedy.

To Queen Mary of England the big tragedy has been the war. Two of her own sons, one in the army and the other in the navy, added a personal ache to the sympathy which she felt so keenly and displayed so constantly for the mothers of her realm. But even back in the days when as "Princess Mar" she rode and walked and played like any other English girl this royal woman had no easy path to tread. The Duke and Duchess of Teck, her parents, were constantly worried during her girlhood over that commonest of misfortunes—lack of money. At the command of Queen Victoria they were obliged to keep up a royal establishment, with all the expensive items of ladies and gentlemen in waiting and two royal residences. No provision, however, had been made whereby the duke could meet the heavy costs of all this grandeur. At last the inevitable arrived with a crash. For the first time in English history there took place within a royal palace a forced sale of the effects of a princess of the royal house for the benefit of her creditors.

Deeply humiliated, the duke and duchess went abroad, where they lived for two years, until the death of a relative brought them a fortune and a reversal of their residence in London. Queen Mary was fifty-three years old on the 6th of May: she has been upon the throne nine years, yet she has not forgotten the financial and social embarrassments with which lack of money clouded her girlhood. Perhaps she had it in mind when she planned the coronation for her coronation. The most magnificent crown ever set on the brow of a queen consort it contained not a single except diamonds. Three of these were of fine proportions, the great Koh-i-Noor, the Marquis de Louvois and the in the center of the magnificent circlet; below it was a diamond weighing sixty-two carats, and above it a pear-shaped marvel weighing ninety-two. A splendid diamond studded recompense for the lean and impecunious years!

Romance, nevertheless, Do not ignore this queen even in the days when stillings were rare as diamonds. Of somewhat masculine mental trend, quite without coquetry or artifice, Princess May still succeeded in winning the affection of her future husband while they were boy and girl playmates. She has proved a wise and prudent counsellor, gaining popularity throughout her kingdom not in one bound, but steadily and surely, and perhaps more importantly than if her gifts were the vivid and flashy ones of a great gift the fates bestowed on one of the choicest they could have dropped into the lap of a future queen consort in 400 years—since the reign of Henry VIII.—to have been born in England and to have been brought up in Great Britain as an Englishwoman.

It was another Englishwoman who fought with all her woman's strength to swing Rumania toward the side of the Allies. Gallantly Queen Marie of Rumania struggled against the peace which her devastated country was forced at last to conclude with the enemy. In a final effort to spur her husband, the king, into a refusal of Germany's terms, the young queen traveled for 300 miles up and down the Rumanian front in her car, obtaining personal promises from soldiers and officers that they would resist to their last breath. The effort proved to be in vain, but it made Marie the idol of her army.

"Gracious" Marie of Rumania

Largely because of her influence Rumania defied Germany instead of contracting a German alliance. She kept the country away from a German pact for nearly four years and then brought it openly to the Allied side. The heroism of the Rumanian army proved vain. In a twinkling Rumania was invaded, laid waste, beaten prostrate.

"I will not recognize such a forced and shameful peace!" cried Marie even as her husband signed his surrender.

Her children's lives as well as her own life stood in danger. She fled to France and thence to England.

"I have learned to hope instead of to regret," she said, "to give instead of to accept; to aid instead of to complain; I have learned to look upward.

not downward; to look forward, not backward. Thus my path was easier and I was less weary."

A gracious and dauntless queen was added to the unhappy group of royal women the day Marie of Rumania ar-

“Gracious” is a queenly adjective, and by immemorial custom it is used in addressing a feminine sovereign. Never was the word more fitting than when applied to the wife of Edward VII of England, now the Dowager Queen Alexandra, mother of the present king. Gentle, though of a lively disposition, her tact and charm are famous.

Nobody supposed Alexandra would be a queen. She was the eldest daughter of King Christian IX of Denmark, who had six children and so very little money that people rather thought he would not be able to make advantageous matches for his girls. Two of them, however, became queens and one son became a king. Alexandra's sister, Marie Dagmar, was czarina of Russia and the mother of the late Czar Nicholas. A son, George, was king of Greece.

Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, had been paired off with a German princess in the plans of the diplomats. But Edward had seen photographs of King Christian's daughters. He fancied Marie Dagmar and made a trip to Denmark for the purpose of meeting her. As he entered the throne room to pay his respects to the Danish king he noticed Marie Dagmar's sister, Alexandra, and her stately "British air" and pleasing manner captivated him. Their marriage took place only a few months later, on March 10, 1863, not long after Alexandra's seventeenth birthday.

Queen Louise of Denmark, forced to economize, had taught her little girls to make their own frocks, which were often of calico and rarely of silk. But like her daughter-in-law, the present Queen Mary, Alexandra made up for the days of meager means when it came time for her coronation. Every woman must sympathize with this joy over really fine clothes. No wonder she treated herself to a coronation robe with a train eighteen feet long, officially the longest court train in the world.

Almost constant anxiety for the safety of her sister, the Russian czarina, helped to sadden Alexandra's reign. The war made the position of Marie Dagrar, long since widowed, even more precarious. Alexandra flung herself into the work of reorganizing the British Red Cross the instant England declared war on Germany, and she labored so hard at this task that the British Red Cross became well-nigh flawless. Within three years Alexandra organized more than 19,000 women for Red Cross service. Her own visiting of the sick and her personal gifts brought inestimable comfort to thousands of wounded soldiers. Perhaps as a reward for these devoted efforts her sister's es-at court, whose piquant face and winsome air were a continual enchantment

It may have been the forestage of tragedy which gave to the eyes of the princess a thoughtful melancholy which constituted their greatest charm. Or it may have been some uncanny prescience of the terrible future. For in the midst of the court balls where Marie's feet twinkled and her mellow laugh rang gayly came word that the czar—Alexander the Liberator, who freed the serfs—had been blown almost to fragments by a nihilist bomb. Marie rushed to the stricken emperor's side and watched there, praying, till the end.

Marie earned the enmity of the Germans in a peculiar way, and by that same token she became an important figure in modern history. While a girl of sixteen she was riding one afternoon through Copenhagen with her father.

German empire. The half-drunken gangster who, at the command of his Prussian master, threw that stone at the little Danish princess never dreamed

So tenderly did Marie love her husband that she never recovered from the grief of his death. With the tenacity and ardor of a lonely nature, she clung the more passionately to her favorite son, Nicholas. Heartbroken at the power exercised over him by his German wife, in despair at the wavering policy which now granted a reform, now abolished it, Marie left the Petrograd court. But when news came of her son's abdication she was first to rush to his side. All night her private railroad car stood on a siding along the Petrograd line, while she gave him every bit of comfort and advice an adoring mother could bestow.

Long after all the rest of the world had accepted as true the story of the atrocious murder of the royal family, Marie refused to believe her son and her grandchildren dead. Each night she put a lamp in the inward window of her bedroom in the villa on the coast at Livadia, a mute, pathetic testimony of mother love. More than once the Bolsheviks broke into the residence, subjecting her to every indignity. But still she refused to leave Livadia, hoping against hope that some night her son would come stumbling toward the rays of that lamp.

Upon Amelle, last queen of Portugal, similar dreadful recollections have been courageous act came too late to save the king or the crown prince, but it undoubtedly saved the life of the other son, Manuel.

Brief and full of turmoil Manuel's reign proved, and when the people drove him from his throne Amelie accompanied her son to England. It had been her dearest ambition to see Manuel restore the former glory of the Portuguese crown. It was her hard lot to see him allow it to grow tarnished and finally to slip from his weak and unworthy hand.

As Amelie was the last queen of Portugal, so was Eugene the last empress of the French. Eugene's story reads like a fairy tale. Once upon a time, as all true fairy tales begin, an Irishman descended from both Fin McCool and Robert Bruce and named Kirkpatrick kept a wine shop in Malaga, Spain. His lovely daughter married the Count of Montijo, and a descendant of this union was Eugene.

Eugene Nearly a Centenarian

When Eugenie was but a child an old gypsy woman made two prophecies in her behalf, "She shall live to be 100 years and she shall be queen." Both seemed unlikely. Yet at the age of twenty-seven Eugenie became empress of the French at the most sumptuous wedding Notre Dame has ever witnessed. And on May 5 of this year the ex-empress was ninety-three years old.

But when after the Whistler Controversy of Montijo moved to Paris, where she renewed her acquaintance with Prosper Merimee, the author of "Carmen," did the opportunity come for Eugene to attend a court ball. Napoleon III was merely prince-president of the French republic then, but for Eugene he had a strong attraction. There are those who impute to the young girl a deliberate and scheming ambition, but whatever the motive, Eugenie a little later obtained an invitation to a fox hunt, where Napoleon III, now emperor, imposed. For her also the future seemed cloudless when she was born, the eldest daughter of the Duke of Orleans. Because of his descent in direct line from the royal house of France the duke had been exiled. Amelie was born in England.

Through the matchmaking of Queen Victoria of England Amelie became the bride of Don Carlos, her apparent to the Portuguese throne. Three years later the old king died and Amelie became queen consort. She inherited all the grace and beauty that made the Orleans princesses famous throughout history, and these, together with her sincere interest in her subjects' welfare, gained for her a popularity equaled only by the late Carmen Sylva in Rumania. Gifted with a keen and practical brain, she is the first queen to become a full-fledged physician. By two years of hard study she won her medical degree, with license to practice medicine. Her first and only patient was her husband, because of whose ill health she had taken the medical

The loyalty she had always shown her father, to whom she wrote every day, manifested itself also toward her husband. Once when rumors of war were heard King Carlos declared he would himself lead an army into the field. Queen Amelie remarked that she would not let the king go into danger alone, and when a courtier expostulated she gave a brave and memorable reply :
"A woman's place and a queen's is by her husband's side, through good report and ill, through rough times and fair."

Nobly she lived up to that sentiment in the darkest hour of her life. For when an assassin's bullets struck down the king and the crown prince in February, 1978, it was the queen herself who sprang between the leveled revolver and her husband's body. Her would surely be. Eugenie at this time possessed ravishing beauty—blue eyes, dark eyelashes, absolutely golden hair. Napoleon III succumbed to her appeal. Eugenie's mother had dark doubts of this match. "I am troubled by the recollection of Marie Antoinette, and I ask myself in dread if my poor child will not some day meet a similar fate."

The words were prophetic. Brilliant as was Eugenie's reign, perfect as was her fascination, the brilliance and the fascination vanished when France plunged unprepared into the Franco-Prussian War. Unjustly, so she always maintained, Eugenie was blamed for precipitating the war. "This is my revenge," she cried when the tide of battle in the world war just ended turned against Prussia.

Yearning for Death

Wherever the blame lay, Napoleon III was taken prisoner. Eugenie fled to Doctor Evans, the American dentist, who managed to smuggle her over to England. After the release of Napoleon Eugenie's hopes and ambitions again rose high, only to fall like withered flowers at her husband's sudden death on English shores.

A second bludgeoning was in store for her, heavier than the loss of a throne, sadder than the loss of a husband. Her only son, on whom now her hopes and ambitions centered, was barbarously killed in Africa while fighting for England against the Zulu tribe in the spring of 1879. Since then Eugenie's life has been one prolonged yearning for death. "I shall live to be 100!" she says in despair.

Just like a fairy story her life began. But it does not end with the pleasing words, "lived happily ever after." Queens' lives seldom do, somehow. Did you ever notice in pictures the eyes of queens? They are almost always grave or sad.

Short Shavings

The bashful man, after courting the girl for twelve months, had at last screwed up sufficient courage to propose by letter. Immediately his note was posted he regretted his rashness and telegraphed in haste to the young lady: "Posted wrong letter to you. Please return unopened."

But it didn't work. Two hours later he received a reply: "No, no, you posted right letter. It was about time, too."

She was an incorrigible flirt and she was married. Therefore she deemed it quite safe to say pretty things to the handsome captain by her side.

"I suppose," she remarked, "you've broken many a woman's heart?"

"Only one," replied he, "and that was many, many years ago."

She sententialed.

"Do tell me about it!" she persisted.

"Well, several years ago I had occasion to journey up north. My only companion in the railway compartment was a very pretty girl. We rode on for many hours together and one evening entered the carriage."

"Yes, yes," she interrupted eagerly.

"I never said a word to her or gave her the slightest opportunity to say anything to me."

A north of Ireland man wanted to send a telegram to a friend in a remote part of the island. The clerk told him the charge would be one shilling and sixpence.

"How do you make that out?"

"Sixpence for the wire and a shilling for delivery outside the radius."

"That be hangin'!" retorted the Irishman. "You send the telegram and I'll write and ask him to call for it."

WILSON, SPURRED BY ALLIES, MAY CURB MEXICANS

Statesmen Predict President Will Intervene to Save the Nation

WASHINGTON. — With Great Britain and France beginning to insist pointedly upon the obligations of their nationals by the Mexican government, not a few American statesmen are of the opinion that the United States will be compelled to take Carranza in hand, unless European nations are to be suffered to intervene in defiance of the Monroe doctrine.

Some senators hazard the prediction that President Wilson will intervene in Mexico for the restoration of stable government after the proclamation of peace with Germany, with the United States acting as the mandatory of the league of nations.

FOREIGN POWERS INSISTENT. The British government is demanding adequate protection for British subjects and property in Mexico, including specifically the oil wells the British government recently has purchased from British corporations, and also is demanding reparation for the destruction of British lives and property.

The French government is making similar demands, and in addition, insists that Carranza pay the interest on $30,000,000 Huerta loan which was floated in France but which has been repudiated by the present Mexican government.

DIFFERENCE IN DEBT. This $36,000,000 loan constitutes the difference between the amount of the Mexican external debt, and estimated by T. W. Osterheld at $173,469,067 and the figures given today by the Mexican government which are $143,472,125.

Regarding the international loan debt of Mexico, the Mexican treasury department says it totals $69,397,775, with interest to June 30 next amounting to $17,914,572.62. The Osterheld report gives this debt as $66,611,912, with interest amounting to $14,531,200.

VAN WERT COUNTY FACES SHORTAGE OF TEACHERS

VAN WERT.—Only seventeen applicants took the county teachers examinations here, the number being the smallest in the history of the county, according to County School Superintendent J. A. Greulich who has just returned from the teachers' meeting at Cedar Point. The shortage of teachers is so acute here, says Prof. Greulich, that it may be impossible to keep open some of the country schools next fall.

FAMO STOPS SEBORRHEA THE DANDRUFF DISEASE

No other hair remedy even remotely resembles FAMO.

FAMO kills the dandruff germ and stops the unhealthy flow from the sebaceous glands.

Every ingredient in FAMO is well known to physicians.

But none of these ingredients were ever before applied to saving the hair.

Science perfected FAMO in one of the oldest pharmaceutical houses in Detroit—famous for its laboratories which supply physicians all over the world with medical goods.

FAMO not only kills the seborrhea microbe but it makes the scalp and hair as clean as that of a baby.

It ends all itching of the scalp.

Even where baldness has already appeared (unless the hair roots are absolutely dead) FAMO will encourage and stimulate the growth of new hair.

Many women say FAMO has caused their hair to grow from four to six inches.

FAMO retards grayness and strengthens the natural color. It contains no alcohol to dry the scalp and produce gray hairs.

It makes the hair luxuriant and lustrous and if there is a tendency to waviness FAMO intensifies it.

FAMO should be used by every member of the family.

It can safely be used on the head of the baby as there is nothing in FAMO that will harm the tenderest scalp.

Used on the head of growing children it will make the most unruly hair lie flat and easy to comb.

Young women find FAMO a peculiarly fine hair dressing. It makes the hair fluffy and full of life.

If you have dandruff you have seborrhea.

Seborrhea is as dangerous to the hair as pyorrhea is to the teeth.

So if you have dandruff not a day should be lost in applying FAMO.

Not until FAMO has cleared your scalp of the deadly dandruff bacilli is your hair safe.

Even if you have no dandruff now! you should use FAMO so that dandruff will be kept away and to make the hair fluffy and beautiful.

FAMO comes in two sizes—35 cents, and an extra large bottle at $1. It is sold at all toilet goods counters. Applications at all the better barber shops. Your money will be refunded if you are not satisfied.

Seborrhea is the medical name for a morbidly increased flow from the sebaceous glands of the scalp. The seborrheic secretion forms in scales or flakes and is commonly known as dandruff.

Teeth Now Beautified Almost Like Magic

Why is it that men and women of refinement go to their dentists two, three or four times a year to have their teeth scraped? Because such persons, though object devotees of the tooth brush, find that no dentifrice suffices to keep their teeth free from stains and tartar. If more people only knew it, there is a remarkable and perfectly harmless product to be found in any drug store, which acts almost like magic when used on unclean and discolored teeth.

Anyone can have the bestest pearly white teeth imaginable by using "Once-a-Week Tooth Polish" in addition to whatever powder or paste is used. If one will procure a package of this and use a little of it once a week on a tooth-brush, the unsightly discolorations and tartar will return after their removal. Furthermore, it will prevent tooth decay and gum inflammation, neutralize acids and keep the breath sweet. "Once-a-Week Tooth Polish" was originated by a well-known dentist.

Hand-made Swinehart Tires (fabric or cord) cost a trifle more than ordinary tires, but they give about 50% longer mileage. Figured on a mileage basis, they are the most economical automobile tires you can buy.

Swinehart Tires are built by hand.

It takes longer and costs more to manufacture tires that way. But the extra time and extra care give results in added mileage all out of proportion to the cost. That's the reason Swinehart Tires have earned the reputation of being the universal standard of automobile tire quality.
